U-BOAT HITS WARSHIP

BERLIN, Dec. 29 (INS)—Another major naval victory, the torpedoing of a 31,000-ton British battleship by a German submarine, was announced by German authorities today.

Officials stated that a Nazi U-boat torpedoed a battleship of the Queen Elizabeth class yesterday west of Scotland. An announcement by the German general headquarters gave no further details.

It was believed the U-boat merely dispatched a brief code message regarding the torpedoing and did not state whether the battleship had been sunk.

The British vessel claimed to have been the victim of the submarine attack was not definitely identified. Aside from the Queen Elizabeth, other vessels in that class include the Warspite, Valiant, Barham and Malaya.

These ships each carry a normal complement of between 1124 and 1184 men and are all fitted as flagships.

U. S. NAVY DESIGNS BURNED

Designs of important engine parts for United States warships and scores of wooden molds for casting navy war equipment were destroyed when a fire of suspicious origin swept the Revere Brass Foundry today.

Because of the importance of the loss—Revere police immediately notified the Navy Department in Washington.

The state fire marshal was requested to enter the investigation and state police were assigned to aid Revere police in guarding the scene.

It was learned that most of the designs were for engine parts and military equipment which were to have been installed in warships building at a Bath, Me., shipyard.

The fire, Fire Chief Thomas J. McCarrick said, caused approximately $15,000 damage.

A preliminary examination indicated, McCarrick said, that the fire was caused by a hot air explosion in a core oven.

An official police report, later withdrawn, that there was a possibility of sabotage brought from McCarrick the statement that he did not think the fire was set.

Company officials said that patterns they used were copies of originals in the hands of master contractors and that there would be no delay in the government work.

Two alarms were sounded as the fire swept the one-story, wooden foundry building with unusual rapidity.

Acting Deputy Chief George Porter ordered the second alarm when clouds of sparks threatened coal yards and warehouses along Railroad ave., Revere.

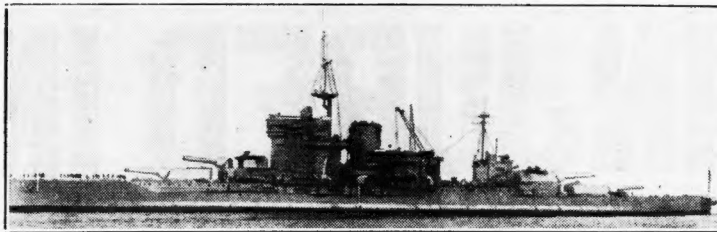

The blaze also menaced the Revere oil farms, a quarter of a mile distant.

Edward J. O'Brien, night watchman at the foundry, discovered the fire and rang the first alarm. He told police the flames leaped suddenly in the interior of the plant and spread with great speed.

MUTINY GRIPS RED ARMY; MANY GIVE UP TO FINNS

HELSINKI, Dec. 29 (INS)—Cold that dipped to 54 degrees (Fahrenheit) below zero, and hunger caused by attacks on Soviet supply routes, today reportedly started a virtual debacle of mutiny and retreat in important units of the Red army.

With traffic impeded on the Murmansk railroad due to Finnish aerial attacks, it was said that two entire battalions of Russian infantry surrendered on the Petsamo front due to extreme hunger.

Editor's Note—A Russian battalion at full strength is figured roughly at 1000 men.

Reports from Finnish sources of the alleged Soviet debacle came on the heels of the imposition of a censorship by Soviet officials on outgoing news dispatches from Moscow.

The Russian column at Hovengjaervi, on the same front, was reported retreating in disorder chiefly because of the shortage of food supplies.

FINNS RESUME ADVANCE

On other fronts the Finns continued their two-pronged advance into Russian territory, while holding their own on the Karelian isthmus and other sectors.

Russia retaliated with increased aerial activity—although rebellion was reported in the air force as well—and crack troops inured to the cold were rushed up to the Finnish frontiers by the scores of thousands.

Karls Junction was bombed, but damage was small and casualties were few.

Air raid warnings also were sounded at Huvankka, Hangö, Karis proper, Lohja and Porvoo.

Violent snowstorms raged in the biting chill of the Arctic front, and many Russians were reported freezing to death.

REDS RUSH ACE TROOPS

Battled by the weather and Finnish tactics, the Russians were said to have abandoned their tank attacks on the central and southern fronts.

Instead, it was said, the Red army rushed up 150,000 of its best Siberian and Caucasian troops—among them large units of Cossacks—concentrating them on the Karelian front.

Finnish accounts from the Salla sector in the east-central region said mutinous Russian airmen attacked their own troops.

Also, it was reported, Russian infantry turned in battle on other Russian companies.

Fighting was heavy on the Salla line, where heavy Russian infantry was brought into combat, trying to stop the Finns, but without success.

Besides the cold and scarcity of food, the Russians were hampered by the darting, circling tactics of the Finns, who refused to meet the Soviet forces in mass combat.

Finnish ski patrols on the Salla front sliced through the Russian lines in narrow columns and operated far behind the lines.

SKIERS REACH RAILWAY

Such columns, it was reported without confirmation, have reached the Murmansk-Leningrad railroad at several points. Also it was reported a Finnish offensive on skis neared Kandalaksha, railroad center on a tip of the White sea.

An army communique announcing that Red forces had been rolled back in one sector of the 1000-mile Eastern frontier at least indicated strong flank support for one of two defensive invasions by ski troops toward Russia's far north supply artery, the Murmansk railway.

The communique said the Russians were "flooded" by the guerrilla warfare being waged by the hit-and-run ski forces on Russian

600 Germans To Fight Hitler

PARIS, Dec. 29 (AP)—Six hundred German legionnaires crying "Nieder mit Hitler"—Down with Hitler—departed today to join the French Foreign Legion at Sidi Bel Abbes, Algeria.

The men are Bavarians who fled Germany and were interned in France.

They were permitted to join the Foreign Legion after investigation of their histories. Later they may join Allied troops on the Western Front.

War Diary

118th Day

By the Associated Press

Soviet warplanes struck anew at Finnish railway junctions and southern coastal cities today while Germany reported a new blow at British sea power.

The German supreme command announced that a British battleship of the Queen Elizabeth class had been torpedoed by a German submarine "west of Scotland."

The Germans added nothing further about the ship's fate or her precise identity. Britain announced a battleship had been attacked by a submarine and that three men had been killed and "some damage" caused but gave no further details.

There are five ships of the Queen Elizabeth class, vessels of 30,600 or 31,000 tons, which were constructed before the World War. Eight 15-inch guns are mounted on each.

Finland's rail centers and coastal towns suffered new air attacks after official Finnish reports told of flights by Finnish airmen yesterday to attack "the enemy's rear, on both sides of the frontier."

Continued success was reported by the Finns who have carried the war to Russian soil on the eastern front, where ski-patrols are striking toward the Murmansk railway, Soviet Arctic supply route.

General G. M. Stern, Soviet hero of Far Eastern fighting against Japan, was said to be the new commander of the Leningrad military district, which is the base for operations against Finland. Gen. K. A. Meretskov, these reports said, was called on the carpet Dec. 22 for failure to overcome the Finns and replaced.

Germany said the western front was quiet except for "minor artillery disturbance fire." The French reported only a few patrol actions east of the Moselle.

Faced with stubborn resistance, Russia was reported reliably to have changed her military commander in charge of the Finnish campaign.

British Admit Warship Damaged, 3 Killed

LONDON, Dec. 29 (AP)—The admiralty announced today that a German submarine had attacked a British battleship, killing three men and causing "some damage."

I was asserted unofficially that the battleship was safe after the attack and was proceeding on her course.

(The announcement followed one by the German supreme command that a British battleship of the Queen Elizabeth class had been torpedoed by a German submarine "west of Scotland.")

After receipt of the German announcement, the admiralty issued a short communique:

"A torpedo attack has been made on a British battleship by a U-boat. Some damage was caused and three men were killed."

NAME OF SHIP SECRET

Officials declined to make further comment and gave no indication what battleship was involved or when or where she was attacked.

The Queen Elizabeth class includes five ships, the oldest in the British navy, all laid down before the World War and completed in the early years of that conflict before the Battle of Jutland.

They are the Queen Elizabeth,

Roosevelt to Ask More Taxes; Will Leave Plans to Congress

By WILLIAM S. NEAL

(International News Service Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29 (INS)—President Roosevelt disclosed at his press conference today that he would ask Congress to enact new taxes when he delivers his message on the state of the Union next Wednesday.

The President said he would suggest a number of taxation plans to Congress and then leave it up to the lawmakers what plan should be adopted. He will not attempt to influence Congress once he has made his recommendations, the President added.

Mr. Roosevelt made it clear, however, that new taxes were needed to raise revenue.

He went on to explain that the total of the new budget, which he probably will make known soon after he delivers his message to Congress, was a good figure.

Because of that, he reiterated, he would recommend a number of forms of taxes for raising money. Then he will sit by and not try to influence the legislators as to which forms they should adopt.

This puts the question of new taxes squarely up to Congress in a presidential election year.

The President said he would suggest at least half a dozen types of taxes.

Meanwhile, from sources other than the White House, it was believed that beside tax recommendations, the President would place only a small legislative program before the session convening Jan. 3.

However, a canvass disclosed that many highly controversial and important measures will confront Congress at the outset.

Roosevelt, Jr., Wife Hurt in Auto Crash

WINCHESTER, Va., Dec. 29 (AP)—Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., and his wife suffered lacerations and bruises in an automobile accident early today as they were driving to Washington from a northern Virginia party.

They were taken to Memorial Hospital by an unidentified motorist after their car rammed a parked truck 23 miles east of Winchester.

The young Roosevelts walked into the hospital unassisted, and attendants expressed the belief they would be able to leave later today.

FIRST LADY THERE

The President's wife arrived here by automobile from Washington shortly after 8 a. m. and summoned a Washington physician to consult with Dr. Robert F. Cline, who treated the couple, on whether they should be taken home.

Dr. Cline said young Mrs. Roosevelt's injuries included a lacerated forehead and right ear, scratches and abrasions, and that her husband suffered lacerations on the forehead and right arm, a small laceration on the upper left arm and scratches and abrasions.

The injuries, he said, apparently were from flying glass.

Occupants of the truck were not hurt.

AT POLISH RELIEF BALL

The accident occurred on a foggy stretch of road near Berry's Ferry, Clarke County, between 5 and 6 a. m., after the couple had left a Polish relief ball at "Scaleby," country home of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Gilpin, near Boyce.

The party was attended by the Polish ambassador, members of his staff and others prominent in Washington and northern Virginia society.

The President's son is a law student at the University of Virginia at Charlottesville, where he and his wife, the former Ethel duPont, maintain their home.

Mrs. Roosevelt Speeds To Her Injured Son

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29 (AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt left the White House today to go to the Winchester, Va., hospital where her son, Franklin, Jr., and his wife were treated after an automobile accident.

Franklin, Jr., had called Rear Admiral Ross T. McIntire, White House physician, who got in touch with a Winchester physician. Later, Dr. Morton D. Willcuts, a navy doctor, went to Winchester for a conference.

The young couple were on the way to Washington at the time of the accident and may come to Washington later in the day, it was said.

HURT IN CAR CRASH—Suffering head lacerations and other injuries after automobile crash early today, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., were taken to Winchester, Va., hospital. A state trooper's version of the crash was that the Roosevelt car ran into the rear of a truck on the slippery highway while returning from a Polish relief ball.

Resigns as Guardian

THREE OF QUINS AT TIME THEY VISITED KING GEORGE AND QUEEN ELIZABETH

DR. DAFOE QUILTS AS QUINS GUARDIAN, ENDS BITTER ROW

CALLANDER, Ont., Dec. 29 (INS)—Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe has agreed to resign as one of the guardians of the famous Quintuplets, whom he ushered into the world, as a means of restoring harmonious relations with their parents, it was learned here today.

The quintuplets will soon leave their special nursery to go to live with their parents and seven brothers and sisters in a new house to be constructed for them, but Dr. Dafoe will remain as their personal physician, under the agreement, it was officially stated.

Olivia Dionne, father of the Quins, will be given the right to call his own physician for consultation with Dr. Dafoe in case the quins become ill in the future and a nurse to whom he objects will be dismissed, it was stated.

SUITS TO BE DROPPED

In return for these concessions from Dr. Dafoe, the agreement was reported to provide that Dionne will drop a series of suits he filed against the physician.

One called for an accounting of revenue from advertisements in which the quins were featured. Another accused Dr. Dafoe of libeling Dionne during his appearance at a hilarious initiation into the Saints and Sinners Club in New York city.

"I cannot say anything until it becomes official," said Dr. Dafoe. "I have been advised by my lawyer to say nothing now."

(An Associated Press dispatch from Miami Beach, Fla., today, quoted Arthur Slaght, attorney to Dr. Dafoe, as confirming reports that the famous little doctor would retire from his guardianship of the quins.)

(Dr. Dafoe's retirement from the guardianship, Slaght said, will be effective as soon as his resignation is accepted by Premier Mitchell Hepburn's Ontario government.)

AGREEMENT REACHED

It had been rumored here for some time that Dionne was prepared to drop his court actions against Dr. Dafoe if the physician would agree to resign as a guardian. It was also said that the points of the agreement had been reached by attorneys for both parties but that, when Dr. Dafoe was ready to sign, a number of unacceptable extra conditions were added by Dionne.

The agreement was said to carry no definite date for the reunion of the Quins and their parents. The other guardians besides Dr. Dafoe are the father, Judge J. A. Vella and Percy D. Wilson.

25 Face U.S. Jury Quiz On Dighton

Summonses for more than 25 witnesses to testify before the extraordinary federal grand jury next Tuesday were approved today by U. S. Atty. Edmund J. Braddon and his assistant, Henry M. Leen, who will provide material for the grand jury's probe into Dighton dog track operations.

In the hands of local government officials now are complete reports of Department of Justice agents and special agents of the Treasury Department, as well as reports of agents of the Massachusetts State Income Tax Division, all in connection with operations at the track.

Some amazing revelations are expected to come out of the extraordinary probe.

LINK UP DOLAN

The shotgun slaying of Edward J. O'Hare, former president of the Hawthorne Kennel Club at Cicero, Ill., at the time of Al Capone's heyday, gave the government the information it had been attempting to obtain for two years.

During this time certain Dighton track officials were being investigated for failure to make proper returns on dog track profits.

Investigation into the O'Hare slaying last September also brought out information definitely tying up Edmund L. Dolan, former city of

Knife in Shoulder Clue to Girl Slayer

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 29 (AP)—The nude body of a pretty, 17-year-old cafe entertainer was tossed into an abandoned coal yard early yesterday, and today police hunted the person who had stabbed her so brutally a four-inch knife blade was imbedded in her shoulder.

The victim was identified, hours after the body was found, as Alice (Jerry) Burns, wife of L. C. (Curly) Burns, former San Bernardino, Cal., railway employee.

Peggy Clark, 18, and Jack Cody, 20, said they had gone with Mrs. Burns to a show and afterward to a cafe where a "strange man" bought Jerry a drink, and she left with him at 4:30 a. m.

An hour and a half later Refugio Ramirez, a butcher, stumbled upon the woman's unclothed body, slashed in the face and stabbed six times in the back and shoulders.

TIRE TRACKS FOUND

Police found, beneath her still-warm form, a blood-soaked artificial red rose, a chain brooch and a woman's black slipper.

Deep tire tracks nearby indicated an automobile had spurted away. Detective Lieutenants Miles Ledbetter and Lloyd Hurst said Miss Clark described Mrs. Burns' companion, when she left the cafe, as a man about 25, with brown hair and bushy eyebrows and "squint eyes."

"I warned her not to have anything to do with him, but she told me he had a lot of money and that she was going some place with him," Miss Clark added.

MARRIED AT 14

At Fort Worth, Tex., Mrs. Burns' parents, Mr. and Mrs. William D. Woodruff, said their daughter had married Jake Johnson of Fort Worth when she was 14. Divorced later, she was sent to the state reformatory for girls at Gaineville for refusing to go to school, her parents said, but escaped and went to California.

Married to Burns last May, she visited her parents six weeks ago and took out a $500 life insurance policy, making her mother the beneficiary.

Miss Clark said Burns left Los Angeles Tuesday, after spending Christmas here. Another friend of the slain woman, Larry Brewster, said, however, he saw Burns here Wednesday night.

The body will be sent to Fort Worth for burial beside the body of a brother killed in a refinery tank fall four years ago.

AMNESIA VICTIM BROCKTON GIRL

Stepping into a taxicab at Washington and Boylston sts. early today, an attractive 30-year-old woman rode to City Hospital and asked there for help in remembering her name and address.

A few hours later, through a Brockton dry cleaning establishment check, Boston police identified her as Miss Evelyn Gallagher of Emerson ave., Brockton.

Boston police said they were told Brockton authorities that a warrant is held for her in Brockton, charging her with operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor.

There was no sign of liquor on her today, however, Boston police added.

According to the police record, Miss Gallagher stepped into the cab of Kystotes Sidlaskas of Baxter st., South Boston, and asked to be driven to a hospital.

Reds Center Drive On U. S. Plane Plants

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29 (INS)—The Communist Party in this country is concentrating its organization work in the airplane industry, an important foundation of national defense, an investigator for the Dies committee reported today.

This informal statement followed the committee's disclosure of two secret reports obtained by investigators from Communist officials in California. These reports, said to have been available only to the party's inner circle, showed that agitation on the west coast during the last two years was concentrated on "basic industries."

"From further information which we obtained we learned that the real drive now is being made in the airplane industry," said James Steedman, a committee investigator. "This industry is particularly strong in southern California."

The two official reports released by the committee were the proceedings of the Communists' California convention, May 14 and 15, 1938, and the Los Angeles convention, March 27 and 28, 1937. In these, the party outlined a drive for membership in the oil, steel, railroad, auto, rubber, maritime and aircraft industries.

Delegates to the state convention reported membership in California had increased from 2500 in 1935 to 6000 in 1938 and urged a drive for 10,000 members by the end of this year.

Weighs Progress Of Loan Probe

Gov. Saltonstall today weighed progress of the probe of certain loan companies, following an appeal by Rep. Michael P. Feeney of Hyde Park for a special session of the Legislature to study the situation.

Feeney told the governor that certain loan agencies had defrauded the public of from 20 to 50 millions of dollars and that the solons should be called back to take action.

MEET TO HALT HUB TRUCKMEN'S STRIKE

Attempting to avert a strike of 5600 Greater Boston truckmen, representatives of truck owners and officials of Local 25 of the Truck Drivers' Union met at the State House today on orders of Labor Commissioner James J. Morarty.

Spokesmen for the operators was Ralph H. Cahouet and John J. Buckley, agent of the union, presented the truckmen's side of the argument. Gen. Charles H. Cole of the state arbitration board presided at the session.

A delegation from the Boston Fruit and Produce Exchange, headed by President George H. Toomey of Somerville, also waited on the Governor. They asked him to intervene to prevent a truck strike.

They said such a strike would seriously affect the handling of Boston's food supplies. The point on which the negotiators are at odds, union officials said, was whether the truckmen should work 54 or 48 hours a week before receiving time and one-half for over-time. The union is seeking extra pay for work performed at the conclusion of a 48-hour work week.

Baby Must Wait For Weight

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 29.—"Barring unforeseen happenings," Rhode Island's tiniest baby, Polly Rickard, who weighed 33½ ounces when prematurely born 19 days ago, must remain in the Homeopathic Hospital here until she weighs five pounds.

The baby now weighs two pounds, 4½ ounces and her diet of brandy and goat's milk gradually is being increased. Polly, which is not yet her baptismal name—still is in an oxygen tent. Dr. George R. Munkin, who attended the infant's mother, Mrs. William R. Rickard of North Scituate, tentatively has decreed that Polly must stay in the hospital until she is three months old.

But the tiniest baby is able to receive visitors, among them her parents, who don masks and white gowns and by nurses and physicians when they call at the nursery.

Casualties in Quake 30,000, Mostly Killed

ANKARA, Dec. 29 (INS)—Casualties in Wednesday's earthquake total more than 30,000, most of whom were killed, according to the latest casualty role issued in Ankara at noon today.

According to the director of the Istanbul observatory shocks may recur during the next 10 days and possibly longer. The violence of the original tremor indicated to experts that the geological phenomenon is 16 miles below the surface of the earth, and may therefore take a long time to settle down.

Fresh misery was heaped upon the victims as earthquake shocks continued throughout the devastated areas, adding new terror to the sufferings of the inhabitants.

A Erzinca, fires fed by winds of gale proportions sped through the ruins of homes and scores of new blazes broke out.

The semi-official Anatolian news agency said that quake casualties "must be counted by the thousands," adding it was impossible to arrive at anything approaching a precise figure.

WHOLE CITY IN RUINS

Erzinca was razed by tremors and flames save for a portion of the military barracks, and not one building in the city remained intact, the agency stated.

Most of the inhabitants were killed or injured.

One thousand houses were destroyed and 1500 persons were killed in the town of Zara in the Sivas district, the news agency said, while terrible destruction occurred in many other towns.

(The Associated Press reported in London that an Exchange Telegraph Agency dispatch from Istanbul said the first published list of casualties showed 1515 dead and 359 injured, exclusive of the Erzinca district.)

Many persons who escaped with their lives from collapsing homes were frozen to death, according to reports reaching Ankara.

TOWN DESTROYED

The town of Keman was reported totally destroyed.

Latest Turkish press reports estimated that there had been 42,000 casualties in the Erzinca district alone as a result of the shocks, which brought about the most serious natural disaster in Turkish history.

Most of these victims were killed, the dispatches said. Other more conservative figures, however, put the total number of dead and injured at "more than 25,000."

Thousands who fled from Erzinca into the fields to escape the debris of falling buildings were said to have frozen to death.

The bitter weather, fires resulting from ruined gas mains and massed piles of wreckage hampered rescue workers who sought to remove bodies and aid those still pinned under the debris of buildings.

Many hundreds of injured persons were still believed to be trapped and relief workers struggled frantically to free them before they, too, were added to the rising death lists.

Government authorities took charge of the relief efforts and the Red Cross and other agencies sent medical supplies and food to the stricken areas.

It was feared that the casualty list, when it is finally compiled, will prove far higher than has been indicated so far. Wrecked communication lines have prevented news from reaching Ankara from many of the devastated areas.

Report Maine Man Lost From N. Y. Boat

Charles Bernstein, Bangor, Me., insurance broker, went to his death in the icy waters of Long Island Sound, officers of the Eastern Steamship New York boat Acadia reported on her arrival here today.

Bernstein's luggage was found intact in his cabin, but there was no sign of him. He was last seen pacing the deck as the ship went through Long Island Sound.

Bernstein is the father of six children. Police learned that he had arrived here Tuesday from Maine and had wired to his wife that he was going to New York on business. In the telegram he told her he would be home in Bangor today.

AL SMITH FACTOR IN '40 RACE

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN

International News Service Staff
Correspondent

NEW YORK, Dec. 29 (INS).—Former Governor Alfred E. Smith, 66 years old tomorrow, may play a quiet but important role in the 1940 presidential campaign.

"Al" himself is not to be considered even as a "dark horse" in the presidential race.

But his support, and that of the conservative wing of the Democratic party which he represents, already is being wooed by aspirants for the presidential nomination.

It was learned today that a few weeks ago Sen. Tom Connally of Texas, one of the sponsors of the Garner-for-President boom and a close friend of the Vice-President, called upon Smith at the latter's New York office.

Sen. Connally tried to sign Smith up as a Garner supporter, but Al refused on the ground that it was too early for him to make a choice within the Democratic party.

For the time being, Smith told Connally, he is keeping an open mind as regards the merit and qualifications of the numerous Democratic presidential aspirants.

Smith also has been sounded out by supporters of other presidential aspirants, including Paul V. McNutt, Social Security administrator and former Governor of Indiana.

Smith is giving all of them the same answer—that too much can happen between now and convention time for him to get on any candidate's band wagon.

Smith, in privately discussing politics, has made one thing plain: he is definitely opposed to a third term for President Roosevelt. Smith is represented as believing the country will not make sure forward steps toward recovery while the New Deal is in power.

WIPE AWAY

Blackheads
and OPEN PORES

New Soy Cream Refines Skin

Thousands of women who formerly were miserable over a skin spoiled by blackheads, large pores and other skin surface blemishes, now applaud a new beautifier called NYCE.

Because it is so remarkably nice to the skin. This new and different preparation contains soy bean extract and other natural oils that penetrate into the mouths of the pores, loosen the grime and waxy secretions that cause blackheads, and thus helps to prevent blackheads from forming.

When NYCE frees the pores from disfiguring dirt and secretions, these pores can return to normal size and the skin resumes its natural, clean appearance. It becomes soft and smooth to the touch. NYCE helps to prevent dryness, tightness and roughness—which may cause ugly premature lines, wrinkles and the withered look of age.

Prove to yourself beyond a doubt that you can have a skin free from ugly blackheads, enlarged pores, and other external skin blemishes. Try NYCE—use it as a night cleanser and as a daytime powder base. Thus for 24 hours a day, NYCE aids your skin... helps to keep it FRESH and protects it against complexion faults that make the skin look dull, old and lifeless. Every application is beneficial. Don't wait, NYCE costs only 25¢ a jar. Mail orders filled.

rail east of Lickse, and that "the enemy also has been pushed back across the frontier northeast of Lickse."

RED KILLS OWN MEN

(The Associated Press said dispatches reaching Stockholm from the Salla sector told of a new Russian assault there against Finland at her narrowest point. The Russians, apparently trying to regain 50 miles of ground lost in the past few days to counter-attacking Finns, had brought up hundreds of new, quick firing field pieces.

(Associated Press dispatches added that lack of knowledge of the terrain in that section of Finland's snowy, gas-swept frontier, far above the Arctic circle, hampered the attackers. Artillery commanders, in fact, were said to have become so confused that at one time they poured poisonous fire onto their own Red troops.)

(In the extreme north, near Petsamo, the Reds were said to have ended a five-day, 50-mile withdrawal toward the Arctic ocean and had started digging trenches for a new position. The Finnish command was reported to have known correspondents the identity of a slain Russian officer in which it was written that the war or Finland was not popular with Russian soldiers.)

(British reports from Helsinki said 2000 Italian volunteers, together with Italian planes, had arrived at Turku, Finnish port at the head of the Gulf of Bothnia.)

Warspite and Valiant, all of 30,600 tons, and the Barham and Malaya, 31,100 tons. Each carries a main battery of eight 15-inch guns. All have undergone considerable reconstruction in recent years.

Each cost $19,000,000. The Queen Elizabeth herself is the oldest, her keel having been laid in October, 1912, and the vessel completed in January, 1915, after which she took part in the unsuccessful Dardanelles campaign.

The Malaya was the gift of the Federated Malay States.

Each cost in the neighborhood of £3,000,000 (at that time $14,580,000) and the class was reconstructed between 1925 and 1933 at a cost of about £1,000,000 for each ship.

The Warspite and Malaya then underwent further reconstruction, and when that work was completed in 1937, the Valiant and Queen Elizabeth were taken in hand for renovation.

The class has a speed of 25 knots and a radius of action of about 4,000 miles.

Since the beginning of the war, the British have acknowledged the loss of one capital ship, the battleship Royal Oak, sunk by a German submarine. Another major loss was the sinking of the aircraft carrier Courageous, 22,500 tons. Other naval losses included a submarine, three destroyers and miscellaneous auxiliary craft.

Dodges 3 Torpedoes, Ship Sunk by Guns

LONDON, Dec. 29 (AP)—The story of a British freighter that played tag with three torpedoes, so enraging a German submarine commander that he finally sank the ship with shell fire, was related today in an official British report which said the submarine probably was sunk later by a rescue ship.

The freighter was the Uskmouth, 2443 tons, sunk Nov. 29 in the Bay of Biscay. The night was so clear, the British account said, that the deck officer saw the wake of an approaching torpedo and threw the helm hard over to dodge the projectile. He did the same with two others.

The submarine then came up to within 300 yards of the Uskmouth and shelled her.

A French warship 65 miles away received an SOS, sped to the scene, and "by a miracle" found the boatswain, who had been thrown into the sea. Dropping him a raft, the French attacked the submarine, and the British said "there is every reason to believe" the raider was sunk.

The Uskmouth's lifeboat, missed by the French ship, sailed nearly 120 miles and was in sight of land when picked up by the Italian motorship Juventus.

Two of the Uskmouth's crew of 22 were missing.

(Reports at the time of the sinking listed the missing, apparently not taking into account the lucky boatswain.)

Spain Protests British Attack Near Cadiz

BERLIN, Dec. 29 (INS)—A British warship attacked on the 2680-ton German steamer Gluecksburg with Spanish territorial waters drew sharp protest to London from the Spanish government today, according to an official announcement circulated by the German news agency DNB.

"The Gluecksburg was beached near Cadiz, Spain, when a British destroyer tried to stop her one and a half miles from the coast," DNB said.

"The Spanish government protested sharply to Great Britain for violating Spanish territorial waters and permitted the German crew to reboard the ship."

Japs Deny U. S. Woman Attack

SHANGHAI, Dec. 29 (AP)—A Japanese naval spokesman today challenged the statement of Miss Frances Donaldson of Louisville, Ky., that she had been struck by a Japanese sentry.

He said that an investigation based on a United States request for disciplinary action and steps to prevent repetition of such incidents was made by naval authorities in charge of the action of the International Settlement where Miss Donaldson said she was attacked Dec. 20.

The investigators, he declared, "conducted a complete investigation and found no evidence thereof and they do not believe it occurred."

The spokesman indicated that while an official record of the inquiry had not been completed, the Japanese reply to Acting United States Consul-General Frank P. Lockhart's representations would be in accord with these findings.

"We consider the charges constitute a fishy allegation made by somebody with an ulterior motive, and definite ill will toward the Japanese is behind it," the spokesman asserted.

Nazis Make Butter From Fats in Coal

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 29.—Germany is prepared to make edible fats from coal and shale. Quite literally, in a pinch she can make her butter from coal.

Details of this discovery were given to the American Association for the Advancement of Science today by a recently arrived German expatriate, Dr. Willy Lange, of the basic science research laboratory, University of Cincinnati.

Dr. Lange was an assistant professor in the University of Berlin, and has followed covered developments up to midsummer, shortly before start of the war.

Fats and coals are the two materials which informed scientists here said Germany was most likely to run short of in war. This month there have been news reports that Germany was progressing on the fat problem with new synthetic chemistry.

The coal fats, Dr. Lange said, are made by blowing steam through burning coal to produce carbon monoxide and hydrogen. The poisonous gas is the starting substance which, with subsequent chemical treatments, becomes first industrial fat, and then edible fat. Shale, of which Germany has a larger supply than of coal, is another starting material for butter substitutes. The shale is first converted into oil.

Germany's immediate purpose, Dr. Lange said, is to make industrial fats, mostly soaps, which need not be so pure as the edible kind, in order to save her natural fats for food.

Last midsummer the first two production plants established reached a production of 60,000 tons annually. Germany's total industrial fat needs total 230,000 tons.

British Make New Bid for Peace in India

LONDON, Dec. 29 (INS).—Coincident with reports of further brewing trouble in India, the British government today took new steps to solve the deadlock that is threatening to cut off Indian military and economic support for the prosecution of the European war.

According to authoritative Whitehall quarters, the government is now ready to take a more conciliatory attitude toward the problem, and semi-official feelers indicate that Britain is willing to consider further constitutional advances if the Indian Congress is prepared to:

1.—Reach agreement with the Muslims on communal questions.
2.—Abandon the demand for a constituent assembly and total freedom, and declare dominion status as its aim.

3.—Recognize defense questions and matters of external affairs should be left in the hands of the British.

High government quarters stated that if the Congress was willing to agree to the foregoing, Britain would bring about dominion status—which would leave agreement with the princes as the only remaining obstacle to a federal India.

Accused Wife Slayer Rushed, Ill, to Hospital

Unconscious as he was taken from his cell at the Charles st. jail, where he was awaiting trial for the murder of his wife in Revere last August, Ferdinand Paarand, 25, of Fifth st., Chelsea, was rushed to the Psychopathic Hospital today and placed under an oxygen tent suffering from pneumonia.

Judge Frederick W. Fosdick ordered his removal to the hospital after a report by Dr. Clifton T. Perkins, head of the mental health department.

It was reported that for days Paarand had a "faraway look in his eyes" that he "was totally unconscious" and "unable to be aroused."

Dr. Arthur Berk, of the state department of mental health made the report to Dr. Perkins after examining the accused prisoner at the jail.

As the result of a fit of depression during the Christmas holidays it was believed his mind had been affected.

Paarand was arrested last August after his wife's body was found on Revere beach.

He was questioned for three days as police sought clues to the slaying. Police claim he finally confessed killing her.

They say he told them he had argued with her because she had "been stepping out."

Bitter Cold Ends in N. E.

Overcast skies, but warmer temperatures, today gave New England relief from the cold snap of the past few days. The forecast promises more cloudiness today and tomorrow.

Boston's official temperature was 23. Sub-zero readings were reported in northern New England. A heavy rain in Florida, more than four inches, is being watched closely as there is some possibility that the disturbance may work northward. This might mean a blanket of snow for New England.

Boston treasurer, as a close associate of the slain sports promoter.

Dolan is now serving a sentence of two-and-one-half years in Charles st. jail for contempt of court in connection with alleged attempts at jury fixing.

Dolan, it has been learned, was a companion of O'Hare on many of the latter's visits to Boston, and has also been definitely linked by government reports with the Dighton dog track.

A few weeks after the O'Hare murder, $22,000 in cash, in two envelopes, each bearing the name "Dolan," was found in a Chicago safety deposit vault listed to O'Hare.

The city of Boston attached this money, inasmuch as approximately $20,000 is still owed the city on a judgment obtained against Dolan in superior court, an action growing out of allegedly illegal bond deals Dolan made while city treasurer.

At least two other politicians will figure in the inquiry, and the income taxes of at least six prominent Massachusetts men and one woman will be aired before the grand jurors.

ATTACKS LOGAN REPORT

Sharp criticism of the report made by the master involving offers of compromise in claims by the closed Federal National Bank was voiced today in federal court by Louis J. O'Malley, counsel for stockholders and depositors of the bank.

O'Malley made his objection in a motion that the report be remitted to the master, Atty. William C. Maguire, "for the purpose of taking further evidence which will enable him to report more fully and more accurately."

Judge George C. Sweeney took the motion under advisement. In his report, Atty. Maguire recommended acceptance of a $30,000 compromise offer for the bank's claims of $463,951 against the estate of Lawrence J. Logan and against Theodore M. Logan, an administrator, and others.

CITES ASSETS.

Maguire's report, however, expressed doubt whether the bank receiver, Frederick S. Deitrick, would be able to collect any part of the amount claimed, despite the fact that the bank holds cash notes and collateral deposited by Theodore M. Logan before the bank crashed.

Meanwhile, counsel for the estate of Lawrence J. Logan contend the estate is not liable on notes or stock assessments, because the other two administrators gave Logan no authority to borrow, nor did the probate court give him permission to borrow from the estate or to buy Federal National stock with the funds.

"While the ability of the receiver to collect on the claims against the estate of Lawrence J. Logan may be questionable," today's motion by Atty. O'Malley stated, "nevertheless the receiver has assets in the amount of $86,000."

OBJECTS TO COMPROMISE

The motion, drawn by O'Malley and his associate counsel, William J. McCallum, further stated:

"The objectors respectfully submit that there is serious objection to the acceptance of this compromise, having in mind the sum of $36,000, which is the difference between the collateral in the receiver's hands ($486,000) and the sum of $350,000 offered in compromise. "This difference, $36,000, will substantially inure to the benefit of the depositors in the Federal National Bank and not allow a former official, who misused the bank's funds, to benefit indirectly—as one of the heirs of the Lawrence J. Logan estate—by the compromise."

BOSTON NAVY YARD BIDS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29—Low bids for bridge cranes and a locomotive crane for the Boston Navy Yard have been received at the Navy Department. The Harnishfeger Corp. of Milwaukee, Wis., bid $68,810 for cranes at the Boston and Norfolk Navy Yards and the Orton Crane & Shovel Co. of Chicago submitted the low bid of $26,125 for the locomotive crane.

GAY SPOTS PREDICT SELLOUTS ON NEW YEAR'S

By SAM BERENSON

Hotels, restaurants, night clubs and amusement places were reporting sellouts today and predicting that Sunday night's celebration of the advent of 1940 would be the greatest since 1929.

Theaters planning midnight shows tomorrow night also report an unusually large demand for reservation with indications that the houses will be packed as the bells toll the passing of 1939.

Indication that this celebration would be the greatest since 1929 came with the report that reservations were more than 25 per cent ahead of those of last year, the greatest observation since the boom years.

The popularity of the large hotels and night clubs with practically sellouts at the present time has also added popularity of smaller and usually less popular places.

Proprietors of these places reported today that they have larger reservation lists than in many years, apparently due to inability of celebrants to find places at the larger hotels and clubs.

The New Year takes on added significance in that it marks the arrival of another Leap year, the opportunity which arrives every four years for romantic young women.

Hoover Says $300,000 Sent to Aid Finland

CHICAGO, Dec. 29 (AP)—The Finnish relief fund drive in the United States in 12 days has sent $300,000 to Finland, its chairman, former President Herbert Hoover, reports.

The money has been cabled in three $100,000 installments, he said while here conferring with leaders of the drive. No goal or quota has been set.

'Dead' Radio Hatecaster Faces Test

FALL RIVER, Dec. 29—A mental test was ordered in district court today for Louis J. Belecki, 27, a mill worker, after he disrupted a program over radio station WJAR and broadcast his hate for the Nazis over a "dead mike" for 45 minutes.

Quick-thinking by Manuel Rodriguez, orchestra leader, and Manuel Ferrara, a musician, prevented Belecki's speech from reaching the air waves and led to arrival of police.

Rodriguez, unobserved, snapped off a switch after Belecki had burst into the station with his overcoat suspiciously covering his right hand and declared:

"Quiet, I'm going on the air to talk in the interests of the people of Poland."

As he talked, his words were heard only by the musicians. Finally, Ferrara arose and casually announced he was going out for a drink.

Instead, he summoned police.

Check for $1000 Aids Mother in Her Grief

A grateful mother with twinkling but misty eyes is Mrs. Annie M. O'Donnell of Westglow st., Dorchester, who has received a $1000 insurance check from a Boston Evening American representative with these words:

"Nobody can bring my boy back. Nobody can tell me how much I loved him. Nobody can realize how much this insurance policy means to me."

Her son, Joseph, 29, was killed instantly when the front tire of his automobile blew out the night of Sept. 5 on Massachusetts ave., Roxbury. The check for Mrs. O'Donnell was the second $1000 payment made within the last few days to a Boston Evening American reader on insurance available at only three cents a week to all regular subscribers of this newspaper.

"For twenty-five years I've read the Evening American. Mrs. O'Donnell said, "and for several years I wondered what made me think I ought to take out that policy on Joe."

She said her son never thought much about insurance, but she decided to take advantage of the Evening American's offer. "This money is like a kindly hand reaching out from the darkness," she said. "It will take care of so many problems."

The policy available to Evening American readers is issued by the North American Accident Insurance Co., one of the nation's foremost insurance companies. You too

Boston After Dark — By GEORGE HOLLAND

But the "joke" business, a recent survey showed, is the fastest-growing industry in America. . . . Strangely enough the industry was well-organized (there in New England at any rate) before the business was out of its infancy. . . . And by the way, Herman Spain, the musical instrument magnate, won the indebtedness of his close friends by including in his Christmas packages a platter (trade-name for record) with Bing Crosby on both sides. . . . The Bing sings "What's New" before you turn over and catch him again in a rendition of the classic "Girl of My Dreams." . . . There is a chance that the riac may be Bing's best. It was in this opinion.

CROSBY APPARENTLY FOUND the penicillarity dilemma of whom to send Christmas cards to, an easy one to settle. . . . The Bing simply sent no Christmas cards this year. So don't feel badly if you missed Regan, the Lowell horse-trainer who supervises the work of Jockey Ruperto Donoso as well as a sizeable string of horses, caused your correspondent (by association of ideas) to give with a teeny-weeny chuckle on the subject of Crooner Crosby and his stable of nags. . . . Who won the largest individual wagers of the New England racing season? . . . That's right, . . . Bing and his partner, Lin Howard.

THEY had sheaves of banknotes spread from Boston to San Francisco, . . . a Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, and New Jersey, in support of their faith in their horses, Preceptor II (which won at 12 to 1 and 7 to 1) and Olympie. . . . Olympie also won at "Gansett," if we believe the charts and the price was 6 to 1 or a bit more. . . . We say Olympie won, but to be accurate we should report that Jockey Donoso won. . . . The small Chilean youngster was astride the second best horse of that particular heat, the actual winner being a steed named Olney. . . . But Donoso claimed a foul and took up his horse Olympie a few yards from the wire with such consummate artistry that the judges couldn't mistake the fact that Olney had lugged in, depriving the Crosby horse of racing room. . . . No, Bing does not do badly. . . . When you buy a record of his voice, for instance, 51 per cent of the profit clicks into his corporate coffers. . . . And sez I, a better guy couldn't net it.

Hollywood Notes

By LOVELLA O. PARSONS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29—The big surprise in production news flashed to me by wire is that Harry Eddington signed a contract as executive producer with RKO, taking the place left vacant by Pan Berman. Eddington, Greta Garbo's former manager recently turned producer at Universal with "Green Hell," will be responsible for all important pictures made on the Hollywood RKO lot.

Lee Marcus will continue to act as executive producer in charge of the balance of the program and J. B. Nolan remains in the berth of assistant to President George J. Schaefer.

One of the nicest letters I have ever received is from Oscar Doob, director of advertising and publicity for Loew's State Theater. He says:

"Marvin Schenk tells me that the week has been a mighty happy one at the boxoffice. You might be interested to know that you provided the famous old Loew's State Theater with one of the best, if not the best pre-holiday weeks in its entire history and with 'Gone With the Wind' as opposition, too. Congratulations. Of course this tour will be an annual event. We want to book you."

Deb Has Party In White House

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29 (AP)—A debutante dominated the White House scene today for the second time in the present Roosevelt administration.

She was Margaret "Peggy" Houghteling, tall, brunette young cousin of President Roosevelt, and was honored by the First Lady at a luncheon for a group of debas and younger girls.

Last year it was Mrs. Roosevelt's niece and namesake, Eleanor Roosevelt of Boston, whose White House ball was the talk of the town. Her's was the fourth debut in the executive mansion since 1900.

Miss Houghteling's party today followed her debut here last week at a tea given by her parents, J. L. Houghteling, commissioner of immigration, and Mrs. Houghteling, daughter of Frederic A. Delano, a brother of the President's mother.

"The Real Glory," featuring Gary Cooper, will be the feature on the new bill opening tomorrow at the Bowdoin and continuing through Tuesday with an extra New Year's Eve show at midnight.

'Folies Parisienne' Tops in Gay Revues

By HARRIS MORGAN

Folies Parisienne est une grande affaire. Les Femmes. Les Femmes, Toujours Les Femmes.

But our pidgin French could scarcely describe the expert entertainment offered by Clifford Fischer at the Keith Boston this week.

Nothing less than an extravaganza, it is as authentic as an Offenbach act, and as subtle as a French post-card. The result is a spicy, scintillating spectacle, that Boston should enjoy.

Gil Lamb is an efficient master of ceremony, not unlike Milton Be-, and he is ably abetted by that perennial Pagliacci of vaudeville, Emile Borneo.

Myrtil and Pacaud is an exotic gait dance number. Corinne, a nimble, clever performer, the dextrous Cristian troupe, plus many other competent performers all help to make this an exciting, colorful show. Especially good is the act of Georges Lenoir, but this must be seen to be appreciated.

Some of the scenes are particularly pleasing. The modernistic "Beauty Factory," as danced in the Martha Graham manner, the "Lace Wedding," in which to the strains of Lohengrin, swing and away some of the most seductive sylphs this city has ever nodded at. As the lad in the second balcony at the morning show remarked, "Two bits Shubits."

The big surprise of the bill is the very hilarious film, "Mexican Spitfire." Those supreme jesters, Lupe Velez and Leon Errol, are back in a swell comedy.

Ever since the "Comedy of Errors," the situation of mistaken identity has been popular with comedians but it is more so here.

Well ensconced on the head of Leslie Goodwins, the director, is the drunken crown of Mack Sennett. We thank him for funniest Keystone ending we have seen in a long time.

We intend to catch this show, again at the special midnight performance New Year's Eve.

Georgia Sothern in Howard's Late Show

For the gala midnight show at the Old Howard tonight, starting at 11:30, the attraction will be "Top Hatters Burlesquers," starring Georgia Sothern with a cast of 60 people including Manny King, Mickie Dennis, Al Weber, the Four Canastrellers, Maxine Breazeale, Charles Schultz, Palmer and Forester, Jerry Lane, Frank Masters, Cornelia and Beth Holmes, Patricia Martin, Gloria Davis, and a chorus of 30 lively girls.

Sunday night there will be a special holiday midnight show starting at 12:01.

Debouts, les morts!"
"Stand up, ye dead!"

THAT was the slogan that held Verdun, vital citadel of the Western Front, against the seemingly endless waves of German shock-troops thrown against it year after year while the enemy high command still believed any position, however formidable, could be taken if attacking forces were willing to pay the price of victory in ruthless expenditure of human lives.

The Verdun story was that French dead and dying rose miraculously to bare their breasts against the advancing foe.

And if that were true at Verdun, it must also have been true in equal measure on the bloody chalk hills of Champagne, where the U. S. Marines and Regulars of the Second Division, A. E. F., wiped out an old and bitter score in October, 1918.

Against Mont Cornelle, Mont Haut and Mont Blanc, notorious "bad corners" just to the right of Rheims and north of the essential Châlons-Epernay railroad line, luckless Gen. Nivelle had vainly hurled his best attack divisions in the ghastly fiasco of April, 1917.

Dauntless, one-armed Gen. Goussault's valiant and Third Algerian Zouaves and the immortal French Foreign Legion had piled their slain in the German wire in hopeless assault after hopeless assault on those terrible bare slopes.

More than 126,000 casualties had been officially listed by the French in a two-weeks period during their 1917 Champagne attack.

And after it all, the Boches still held the low range of scarred hills commanding the Châlons-Epernay valley the center of the world's most famous wine producing territory.

It remained for the American Second Division—already decorated for extraordinary valor in halting the German drive in Paris in Belleau Woods near Chateau Thierry—finally to seize and occupy Mont Blanc, commanding height of them all on the Champagne front.

SERVING as a private in F Co. of the Ninth Infantry, Second Division, was youthful Saxton Conant Foss of Somerville, son of the nationally known Sam Walter Foss, distinguished New England editor and poet who wrote "The House by the Side of the Road" and many another happy and beloved bit of Yankee verse and epigram.

Sam Walter Foss had died in 1911, and his son, Saxton, was the only one left to console widowed Mrs. Carrie Maria Conant Foss. Yet she sent young Saxton, Harvard graduate and Boston newspaperman, to serve his country in his country's hour of need. Pvt. Foss survived the Second Division's terrifically costly battle in Belleau Woods. But he was fatally wounded Oct. 8, 1918, when his regiment won itself renewed glory in taking and holding Blanc mountain, in Champagne, at a cost of 5400 casualties.

THE horse chestnut trees of Paris were just coming into lovely bloom in April, 1917, when Nivelle's Colonial storm troops swarmed doggedly up that same hill—and other hills beside it—in the face of chattering machine guns that mowed them down in incredibly bloody windrows. The German wire was strung

Gentlemen:

By a unanimous vote of our council, it was moved that your newspaper be given a rising vote of thanks for the splendid editorial, Cited for Valor, and the story of Father DeValles, the Hero Chaplain, in your issue of December 19th.

We wish to congratulate Mr. Perkins for the very complete data he "dug" up in this story. It was complete in every detail.

Thanking you again for your very fine spirit and extending to you all our very best wishes for a Very Happy and Prosperous New Year, we are,

Sincerely yours,

four feet high on Mont Blanc, Mont Haut and Mont Cornelle, but dead bodies of Algerian and Foreign Legion infantry packed it solid on the first day of the assault.

It was in this assault that Pvt. Foss was killed because he, too, was generous with his life.

On Oct. 8, 1918 in the St. Mihiel offensive the Ninth U. S. Infantry (regular) was fighting to take the ridge. The advancing battalion, with Company F as a unit, was held up by a German machine gun nest.

Young Foss volunteered to flank it and he went over, but a bullet got him in the abdomen. His buddies carried him back to the little village of Somme-Suippe, where he died the next day.

Foss had enlisted early, on June 3, 1917, in Boston. He had not been particularly prominent at Harvard, possibly because he lived at home, although during one year he had been president of the Harvard Club of Somerville.

From Harvard he went to the Christian Science Monitor, later to the Boston Globe—and then to war. He did not, however, go to an officers' training camp, preferring to enlist as a private.

HE was trained at the recruit camp on the old Fair Grounds at Syracuse, New York, and was assigned to Co. F of the Ninth Regulars after several months. The Ninth was a unit of the famous Second Division.

He was already a seasoned veteran before the Champagne because his division and his regiment saw hard and continuous fighting—fighting in the Toulon-Troyon sector, the Aisne defensive, Chateau Thierry, the famous Aisne-Marne offensive, the Marbache sector and St. Mihiel—all these before Champagne.

"Our regiment has become a regular traveling circus," he wrote to his mother back in Somerville. "We are always on the move and never know from one day to another whether night will find us in a barn, a French home, roomy barracks, or hidden away in a dugout in the trenches."

MEMORIAL PARK—Although the name-sign is rusted, the Saxton Conant Foss Park holds forth in wintry splendor in Somerville . . . where children skate . . . unmindful of the heroic youth who met death at Medeah Farm while attacking a German machine-gun nest on Oct. 8, 1918. Too, perpetuating the memory of the Somerville soldier is a memorial at Candia, N. H., and the record of the Distinguished Service Cross awarded him.

"Have made another trip to the front line trenches during which time the Boche kept pretty quiet. I was placed on a listening post in front of the lines and it was my duty to stand as near motionless as possible in the darkness with my fellow guard, our ears open to hear the slightest sound which would indicate that the Boche was lurking in the barbed wire in front of us. But he was cautious and never came."

"Nearly every night we went out patrols to explore No Man's Land. The fellows looked like misfits when they started out, their faces blackened to avoid being seen by the sentries and patrols of the Germans."

"From time to time bright rocket lights would shoot up from the German trenches, which showed the Boches were hoping to discover American or French patrols near their lines. We shot our rifles often at the German trenches, but they seldom answered, although several times their artillery would blaze away over our heads, the shrapnel striking in or near towns far in back of us. At break of day both sides knocked off work and we went to our beds."

Then he told of a rest period at a camp where he lived with Frenchmen—all middle-aged men and their one great hope is that the Americans will be able to finir la guerre."

On Sept. 18, 1918, he wrote his mother about going over the top, but—

"Our company was reserve, so we had an easy time of it, having a pleasant walk of about five miles, as the Germans had taken to their heels before we reached them. We reached a town of the enemy which had been occupied by the Germans since the beginning of the war."

HE told how the "women and children and old men" cheered the Americans.

"They had been having a hard time of it, being almost starved, as the Dutchmen had taken nearly all the food for themselves."

"The German officers and soldiers," he reported, "virtually ran away when they learned the Americans were coming, leaving all the possessions they had accumulated during their occupancy."

Foss and his buddies were "quartered" in a huge French dugout in which many of the women and children took shelter also, and I woke in the morning to find a black-haired French baby sleeping peacefully by my side."

Foss' job at the time was that of runner, taking messages from one company to another and "got along quite well except once when I was sent out at night and wandered around for about two hours within one hundred feet of the officer I was looking for before I could locate him."

He reported that his outfit "took" many German prisoners, that "captured" would be too strong a word, as they were quite willing to surrender, barely a few of them putting up much resistance."

"I spoke to one of them who had lived in New York and had been pressed into the army while on a visit to Germany, and he said he wanted to get back to the States again."

This letter to his mother was sent in "a Boche envelope, part of the spoils of war."

THE news of young Foss' death "did not filter home through official channels until well over a month after he had been buried near the temporary hospital where he died."

His mother and sister celebrated the Armistice at home in the confident hope that their beloved boy soon would be back with them, out of the horror and carnage he had endured, home to pick up the threads of the newspaper life he loved so dearly.

His body later was transferred to the now famous American Cemetery at Belleau Wood.

Honors came late, as they have a way of doing in a big war. The Distinguished Service Cross was awarded to him early in June, 1919, the citation reading:

"For extraordinary heroism in action near Medeah Farm, France, Oct. 8, 1918. With exceptional courage Private Foss voluntarily advanced to flank a machine gun nest unslighted which was holding up the advancing battalion and in so doing was fatally wounded."

At Candia, N. H., his father's birthplace, a tree was planted and dedicated to his memory on Aug. 18, 1921. And in Somerville the name of Broadway Park was changed to Saxton C. Foss Park, fitting tribute to a local boy who made good the hardest way.

DEATH CORNER—On a terrain like this, riddled by shells, Private Saxton Conant Foss of Somerville died . . . at Medeah Farm, in Champagne, near where 126,000 Frenchmen fell in two weeks' fighting a year before. Private Foss was a Boston newspaperman, Harvard graduate and son of the poet who wrote, "The House on the Side of the Road."

FROM all New England, from scores of cities and towns, come letters endorsing Circulation Manager J. M. Stenbuck's suggestion that motorists, and pedestrians pledge themselves to constant caution to avert automobile traffic deaths between now and New Year's.

Writing to Boston Police Commissioner Joseph F. Timilty, Mr. Stenbuck said that the 700 men in his newspaper department were signing pledge cards. Commissioner Timilty has replied:

"I desire to commend you and your esteemed newspapers for the splendid and timely initiative undertaken to promote greater safety upon our highways . . .

"Your co-operation at this particular time is especially helpful and, through your legion of readers in New England, a further impetus will be given to the cause of highway safety, with a consequent reduction in automobile fatalities and injuries."

Expressing like enthusiasm, the Inman Square Business Men's Association of Cambridge says:

"We endorse your safety campaign. In a resolution adopted at a meeting last night, it was recorded: 'Pedestrians and drivers should co-operate with public officials to make safe highways.' We support the program of the Hearst newspapers."

Every mail brings additional letters, both to Mr. Stenbuck and to police officials in the various cities and towns in which New Englanders reside.

Aroused by the road tragedies that caused 397 deaths in the United States during the Christmas holidays, our people are determined that at least in this part of the country the approaching holiday will see no repetition of needless suffering and sorrow.

For the convenience of the hundreds of readers who want to do their part to save lives but who have neglected to sign the safety pledge, we reprint the coupon which appeared in Wednesday's editions of the Daily Record and Evening American. The coupon:

Appreciating the need for increased vigilance between now and New Year's both in walking and driving, I pledge my good-will and courtesy toward all pedestrians and drivers and my co-operation with law enforcing and safety agencies to the end that a real record can be achieved with respect to safer streets and happier homes.

"SHOULD I STUDY LAW to succeed in politics?"

asks a Boston University student in a letter addressed to this newspaper.

That is a difficult question. A knowledge of law and membership in a bar association are not necessary to distinguished public service. But they can be helpful.

Eighty of the 96 members of the United States Senate are lawyers. Two hundred and sixty-two Congressmen are enrolled in the same profession.

But 16 Senators and 173 holders of House of Representative chairs seem to be doing very well without law school diplomas.

For some reason, voters in certain States favor lawyer-candidates more than voters in other States.

For instance, attorneys, retired and practicing, constitute 50 per cent of New Jersey's legislature, 57 per cent of Arkansas', 46 per cent of North Carolina's, 45 per cent of Delaware's and 49 per cent of Texas'.

Yet less than 4 per cent of New Hampshire solons are lawyers, and only 5 per cent of Wyoming's.

CUPID IS BUSIER

in Boston, City Registrar James A. Burke reports. The total number of couples to climb to the tenth floor of City Hall Annex this year was 8445, as compared to 7237 last year.

This is encouraging news. Hundreds of young people postponed marriage during the depression due to the insecurity of employment.

Now, with factories re-opening, jobs returning and payrolls expanding, these couples no longer see reason for delay.

Of course, the total of 8445 is far below that of 1917, when 11,173 marriages were recorded. But it is an improvement.

AT FIRST we wondered how we could adjust . . . our lives and hers—the doctors said we must . . . to endless days of plaster casts and pain . . . her childhood gone—never to walk again . . . while other children, some her own classmates . . . sped by on bicycles and roller skates . . . Into her eyes one day a sunbeam stole . . . rebuking us for all our selfishness . . . reminding us in all our keen distress . . . that our sweet Broken Blossom had a soul.

Human Side of News

By EDWIN C. HILL

MAKE PEACE or else! Such is the warning given to this bemused and sinful world by the Tibetan Abbot Chao-Kung. He admonishes the warring powers that unless they call a peace conference immediately, the Supreme Masters of the Buddhist faith will liquidate them—all, that is, except Finland.

The interesting thing about this pronouncement is not its content, but the Personality of the Abbot.

It's a far cry and a long jaunt, some 10,000 miles from Brooklyn and a great pile of stone called the Raymond Street jail to a cell in another great pile of stone in far-away Tibet—the Tse Shan Monastery.

But Ignatius Trebitsch-Lincoln, who was a war spy prisoner in a Brooklyn County jail in war days is today none other than the Abbot Chao-Kung of the Buddhist faith. This strange man Lincoln is one of the white men who have embraced Buddhism and its severe rules designed to humble the body and liberate the spirit.

BUDDHIST MONKS dress only in rags. They eat only one meal a day of the simplest food. They possess nothing in this world except the rags that cover them and the begging bowl with which they collect their daily food. The good things of this world are not for the monks of Gautama.

Buddha—the prince who left his palace 600 years before Christ and went out to walk the dusty, white heat-baked roads of Hindustan. And the end of all this is Nirvana, absorption in the infinite endless peace.

ABBOT CHAO-KUNG
"Make Peace or Else!"

The one-time German spy, now a monk, broods on a high mountain and yearns for Nirvana. There are holy men who brood on mountain tops in that strange land of Tibet who seem to have circumvented the laws of nature.

There on the top of the world are wonder-workers who have exalted the spirit by subduing the body. They have mastered some ancient mystery of breathing by which they can make their bodies lighter than the air and suspend their weight in space.

Old and frail as some of these are, they can travel in a few hours distances a galloping horse would require three days to cover. In the terrible cold of the high Himalayas, they can lie down naked on ice and snow and go peacefully asleep, quite insensible to the bitter frost, and awake without untoward consequence.

THESE THINGS are attested to by reliable explorers and travelers of repute. One of these lamas said these words to Madame David-Neel, who became a lama herself: "God, human beings, the whole universe are but a mirage which exists in the mind, springs from it and sinks back into it."

Well, perhaps it is all illusion, some form of hypnotism, but it is on record that the very holy men who have almost killed their bodies in refining the spirit can project their spirits over great distances and to far places while the body itself remains behind, sometimes in a state of trance.

Perhaps this accounts for the strange fact that long before there were telegraph wires, much less radio, news of great events was known from end to end of India, in the Buddhist temples within a few hours after it occurred, weeks, sometimes, before it reached the world of white men outside.

MY DAY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29—

Franklin, Jr., and Ethel had a party for their young friends, and I was interested to meet the children of some of our friends whom I had not seen in a long time. I find all these young people so interesting and so much better informed than I was at the same age.

After dinner, we were shown "Come With The Wind." It is an extraordinary movie beautifully acted. Though I could not believe beforehand that one would sit for three hours and 45 minutes, and be interested, I discovered that it was entirely possible.

There is an intermission in the middle and I had to tear myself away for a time to do some very necessary work, but I saw most of it and my mother-in-law sat through the whole performance, which began at 10 o'clock and did not end until 2 a. m.

A GROUP of people were called together today at luncheon under the leadership of Charles Tausig, chairman of the Advisory Committee of the National Youth Administration, to discuss certain problems of youth. Later two gentlemen who are organizing an Atlantic Coast States Institute of Human Relations, sponsored by the National Conference of Christians and Jews, in Washington on January 13th and 17th, came to talk to me about their plans. In the meantime, a children's party had begun and was in full swing.

ROMANTIC SCENE IN "GONE WITH THE WIND"
"It Is an Extraordinary Movie Beautifully Acted" with the boys and girls enjoying a movie program, slightly more elaborate than the one we had yesterday for the young group.

OUR FAMILY is gradually growing smaller. Anna and John left today for a few days in New York City. Mrs. J. R. Roosevelt leaves us tomorrow morning, and so, little by little, the house will become quiet again, though as long as we keep the children we will feel the spirit of young life in the house, which I think always had, begun and was in full swing.

I have been very much amused the last few days to hear that I have been offered one or two positions which I would consider full time jobs. I am beginning to wonder whether I have earned for myself the reputation of being willing to accept work which I cannot possibly do, and letting other people do it for me.

This is something which I am particularly opposed to doing, and I would grieve if I have given the impression that it was a standard to which I am at present willing to subscribe.

JOLSON HEARS OWN
DEATH REPORT

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—At his apartment here Al Jolson received two phone calls from press associations checking on a rumor that he had died. His manager, Louis Epstein, denied it, of course—while Jolson suggested that he make no comment at all. . . . At 3 p. m., when the Associated Press called regarding that rumor, Jolson answered the phone. "I can't top Mark Twain's remark about the rumor being exaggerated," said Al, "but what would you have done if it were true?" . . . "We would have had it on every front page in the country," was the reply. . . . Jolson turned to his manager and berated: "See? On every front page. Didn't I tell you to say: 'No comment?'"

LAST WEEK END backstage at the Ethel Barrymore Theater, the cast of "Key Largo" had a Christmas party. . . . Some of the actors brought their relatives, and every one—including the walk-ons—entertained. . . . Eve Abbott danced a Conga with her husband, Keenan Wynn, while the latter's father, Ed Wynn, played the piano. . . . One guest looked on with great amusement and then confessed: "I'm sorry, but it seems that I'm the only one here who can't do anything to entertain you." . . . He's the foremost actor on the American stage today—Mr. Paul Muni.

DOLLY GOERING, who had been Tommy Manville's secretary for many years, is returning to New York to resume her secretarial duties with him. . . . Tax Appraiser Dave Soden and Abe Ellis, the cloakroom concessionaire, were hosts to a party of 2000 orphans yesterday at the Livingston in Brooklyn. . . . If Mayor LaGuardia doesn't rehire his press secretary, Jim Kieran, Billy Rose is preparing to grab him. . . . Alfred Lief, who wrote "Democracy's Norris," Sen. Norris' biography, is writing a book about Supreme Court Justice Stone.

JOHN GARFIELD has returned to Hollywood. His father's only request was a season pass to the local Bronx movie theater—as evidence to the neighbors that he's the father of John Garfield. . . . Miriam Kreinsmen, who gathered publicity recently as the only girl football coach in the country, wants to chuck it all for a career in show business here. She's the niece of Kelsey Allen, the drama critic.

ALEXANDER WOOLLCOTT dined at Harpo Marx's with Alan Campbell and Dorothy Parker last week. . . . Woolcott immediately took charge, demanding the food he alone liked and ordering the rest sent back, complaining about the servants and compelling the guests to play games they didn't want to play and at which he alone was the winner—at high stakes. . . . "Now, really, Alec," Dorothy Parker chided him, "you're getting more like Monte Woolley every day."

GOODMAN ACE, who doesn't drink, ordered a Coca-Cola at the Beachcomber's premiere last night. "That doesn't sound he-mannish," Ace was criticized. "All right," he compromised, "I'll take a Cuba Libre—with-out rum."

DOLLY GOERING

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY: The Man She Loves and Vivien Leigh probably will be on view by Boston audiences, as stars of a conventional "Romeo and Juliet," before the day the first installment of 1939 income taxes comes due. . . . Vivien's man (on the authority of an unprecedented unanimity of Hollywood newspaper and radio chatters) is Laurence Olivier, a darn good actor. . . . Both are Brits. . . . Miss Leigh will find a neat solution of the problem of "what after Scarlett?" by being Juliet. . . . As the victim Miss O'Hara of "G. With the W.," Vivien has reached the heights in one standing leap. . . . Like other members of the "Gone W. T. W." cast, (excepting possibly the impassive Mr. Gable), Miss Leigh has been troubled by a future that loomed as a certain anti-climax to her cinema beginning as Scarlett, pet of the Confederates. . . . But Juliet is a good role, too.

ALL THE 3600-ODD SEATS at Loew's State Theater, and the 3000-odd seats of Loew's Orpheum Theater, have been sold for New Year's Eve. . . . Without any trouble at all, all the seats of both houses could have been sold out with similar lack of urging had a New Year's Eve midnight show been scheduled for the Boston first-run of "G. W. T. W." . . . The Loew's staff, the pink of their ears turned ruddy from constant juxtaposition with a telephone receiver in response to demands for seats, would have welcomed an extra New Year's Eve performance. . . . There was a dim hope last evening even, that such a show might be ordered from New York. . . . The "word" did not come. . . . David Selznick, producer of the film, was alleged to have been averse to midnight performances—New Year's Eve or any time. . . . Midnight theatergoers will be accommodated downtown at the Old Howard, the Globe, the RKO Boston and Metropolitan Theaters. . . . And for the first time in their respective careers as they touch on Boston, Ruby Foo and Glenn Miller will be holding forth for their admirers as the Old Year gives way to a New (Let's Keep What We Have) Year. . . . Miss Foo's Den paid no special heed to the scrambling of past years, but something—maybe the stern stand of her countrymen against the Japanese—inspired her this year to add favors, noise-makers, and possibly a Chinese hand to the ordinary routine in which customers just eat or eat and listen to a "juke" box. . . . Maestro Miller is at the peak of his sensational perch atop the popular music world, and will be playing in Boston at Mechanics Building. . . . Glenn got his real start here. . . . This choosing of Boston from a hundred engagements offered him for the important New Year's Eve date is said to be an expression of gratitude.

MENTION OF "JUKE" BOXES brings up several topics of conversation. . . . The "juke" is a coin-machine which takes your nickel and gives you Bing Crosby or Benny Goodman or "I Thought About You" (watch this tune grow in popularity). . . . A big battle is imminent over the "juke," with both the "recording artists" and the composers and lyricists seeking greater financial rewards. . . . As things now stand, the artists and the writers share only in the proceeds accruing from the sale of the original record. . . . If the record's popularity is such that it catches a hundred nickels a night no further increment reaches its creators' pockets. . . . Straightening out that curricular problem should tax the brains of even those of the publishers, authors, composers and singers who won an A in Calculus. . . .

WANT QUINS IN LANE
SISTERS' FILM

By Louella O. Parsons

Rosemary Lane

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 29 The hottest deal on the Hollywood fire is Jack Warner's efforts to get the Donnie Quintuplets to sit on the knees of the Lane sisters in "Four Mothers," which is the next chapter in the lives of the "Four Daughters" and that, my friends, is real news! As you know, 20th Century-Fox has had the first call on the services of the famous little French Canadian babes but it is no secret there was a lot of trouble filming their last picture, "Five of a Kind," because the youngsters speak no little English. There's not only a good chance the studios might get together on the deal—it is practically set.

Betty Davis is the girl who put the bee in Jack's bonnet about getting the quins. She visited Callander, you know, on her vacation and was impressed with the way the little girls have "grown up." If they are used in "Four Mothers" they will be cast as the adopted children of the Lane girls in order to take care of their French accents. But what a bonny hit this combination will make.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD AND NEW YORK: The Henry Woodsons (Joan Woodbury) elated after the arrival of a baby girl, born yesterday, and named Wendy Jean; just before we left Hoot Gibson stopped by the hotel to see me. They want Gloria Blondell, him to do a stage revival of "The Virginian" and he'd be well as she's still popular with the fans around the country; Ruth Taylor, her husband, Paul Zuckerman, and Lorna Hearst came to see our last show and we went on to the opening of the New York "Beachcombers." Gloria Blondell, Joan's sister, is the soloist there with Matty Malneck's orchestra.

JOCK WHITNEY's party at the Troc after "Gone With the Wind" brought out Marlene Dietrich with Eric Renner, Norma Shearer with George Raft, and Joan Crawford with Cesar Romero; hear that Jeffrey Lynn leaved Ann Sheridan to the premiere, which is a new duet in Hollywood since 1 left; Dana Lewis and Bill Powell have been doing the night spots together on the coast; Stan Laurel knocking Hollywood cold by showing up at the preview of his latest, "Two's Company" with Ruth Laurel, who was wife No. 2.

JOEL MCCREA back at work after a siege with the flu; Henry Henigson, head man at Universal for years, will be vice-president of Globe Productions, the new company headed by Jimmy Roosevelt; hear Judy Garland is swatting Jimmy Cagney's frat pun; Lee Russell, Bart Marshall's heart, suffering from a badly jammed finger and the loss of two nails; Betty Grable is the toast of New York and that's no idle jest. Everywhere she goes she's surrounded by admirers; will Lillian Gish be the answer to M-G-M's prayers for the perfect Emma Ritter for "Escape"? This cast problem is weighty since it calls for a woman, still young enough to be a glamorous star of the screen, and old enough to be the mother of a 21-year-old son.

TWO-MINUTE STORY

TWO GIRLS, both 16, had looked dreamily at the first star out that winter night, and each made a wish. Mary, a brunette, with sparkling eyes, wanted a career, while Jane, a blonde, blue-eyed, wanted a home of her own.

Soon, their 21st birthday found their wishes coming true.

Jane was happily married. Mary was writing musical plays and hoped to have one on Broadway by New Year's Eve. A producer finally agreed to back her play, and the New Year ushered in Mary's first success.

YEARS PASSED. Broadway saw a lot of Mary, but the girls saw less and less of each other. Mary had her career, Jane her home. Mary had married, but her marriage didn't prove to be a happy one. A divorce followed. This plunged her into her work. Time saw her win awards for her plays.

New Year's Eve again, and Mary was attending her prize play.

Twenty years ago she saw her first play on Broadway.

This year found her watching her greatest. Twenty years of work and success!

OUTSIDE the theater that night a young girl waited for her. When Mary saw her she stopped, for there was something about this girl that interested Mary. She learned that this lovely child wrote plays and wanted Mary's help and advice.

Mary promised to help her, but in return she must also make a promise.

She said: "Diana, if you ever fall in love never make a career stand in the way. I want you to be as happy as a girl I knew. Career isn't everything." Diana promised.

Little did she know that the happy girl Mary referred to was her mother. Mary knew she had not mistaken this girl's resemblance to a sweet Jane she once knew.

LISTEN, WORLD! By Elsie Robinson

A NOBLE PHRASE came out of the late war—"THEY SHALL NOT PASS!" That phrase lifted men out of demoralization—tightened their strength—shot them through to victory. IT CAN DO THE SAME FOR YOU.

Your life is as truly a battlefield as was Verdun, but you face infinitely more dangerous foes than the Allies ever faced. Their foes were men and bullets and gas. Deadly as was that combination, it cannot compare with the viciousness of your enemy—THE ENEMY OF YOUR OWN THOUGHTS.

THE MOST MALICIOUS thing you will ever have to face in life lies within you—in your own mind—the thoughts you allow to enter and generate in your own mind. You don't like to acknowledge that. You like to blame your bad luck on outward circumstances. But actually the cause for most of your grief lies within yourself—LIES IN THE THOUGHTS YOU FEED YOURSELF.

Cowardly, concealed thoughts . . . suspicious, vindictive, hateful thoughts

. . . thoughts of vain grief and vain remorse . . . jealous and envious thoughts . . . and, above all, SELF EXCUSING thoughts—these are the real forces which undermine and frustrate your life.

"But I can't help thinking," you say. Perhaps not. . . . BUT YOU CAN HELP WHAT YOU THINK.

TAKE A CROSS SECTION of the thoughts which are filling your mind at present. Look them over honestly, courageously. Decide which thoughts are doing you good . . . which aren't. That will be hard, for some of our most destructive thoughts had a noble beginning. The grief over a dead child . . . remorse over past folly . . . these thoughts were sacred at their source. BUT THEY CAN CLOG LIFE. . . . THEY CAN WASTE AND DEMORALIZE YOU. . . . AS SURELY AS THE MOST EVIL SPECULATION.

Put them away from you. Deny them entrance. SAY—"THEY SHALL NOT PASS!" Then stick to it!

MOTHER OF SIX SONS JOINS ANTI-WAR DRIVE

A mother of six sons, speaking in behalf of other mothers and sons, was among scores of women who pledged themselves yesterday to the National Legion of Mothers of America, with a promise to keep American youth from foreign wars for foreign causes.

The mother, Mrs. Agnes O'Brien of 29 Winthrop st., Waltham, writes: "I do not want war because I have six sons, and any mother with six sons wouldn't want to lose them. I worked hard to bring them up, and I don't want them to go to war and be shot down. Please, all of us, let's do our best to keep this country out of war."

For 20 years a Somerville mother has cared for a brother who returned from the World War helpless and disabled.

TELLS OF SUFFERING

The mother, Mrs. Mary E. Bent, of 62 Church st., writes: "I do not want my sons to go to war. What for? My brother came back from the last war a wreck, and no one cared then except those who loved him, and he tried so hard to live for 20 years as a disabled veteran. If others could see him suffer as I did, until he died last June, they would understand. I am the mother of 10 children, five boys and five girls, and I do not want to lose my sons. I feel like saying to those who started this war: "Please call it off. You don't know what it means to a mother's heart." Let every American mother cry out: "No!"

BROCKTON MOTHER'S PLEA

A Brockton mother, Mrs. Marvel Deehan of 71 Moraine st., writes: "I am the mother of three half-grown boys and I should hate to see them fighting on foreign soil with guns. I say with guns, because I feel that there is only one way for us to fight the 'isms' that are springing up like mushrooms all over the world, and that is to use as our weapons the ideals that this country was founded upon.

"Idealism has ever been scoffed at, but I notice that it always wins in the end. Right is right. We must turn to God as our leader and fight the conditions in the world today with the weapons of tolerance, kindness and love; love such as Christ had when He came to earth 1900 years ago and gave His life 33 years later for us."

Security Tax Foe Turns Down Aid of Neighbors

YORK, Pa., Dec. 29 (AP)—Fred C. Perkins, steadfastly defying federal and state attempts to collect social security taxes, turned down today a truck offered to replace two confiscated by federal agents to satisfy tax claims.

He said he'll use his young son's light roadster and the family car to deliver his batteries and try to buy back his trucks when they are auctioned Jan. 8.

"A Hollidaysburg (Pa.) trucker called me this morning and offered to send a big truck down to help me out," Perkins said, "but a 12-ton machine is too large for our needs."

The battery manufacturer said he was using his 17-year-old son's light roadster and the family car to take the place of the trucks which federal agents seized.

"We'll build boxes along the sides of the roadster," Perkins said, "and if necessary on the family car, to hold the batteries."

Perkins, who went to jail in 1934 rather than comply with provisions of the NRA, owes the federal government $105.36 in unpaid social security taxes, interest and penalties.

The State also is attempting to collect $222 in unemployment compensation levies.

Perkins said he objected to paying the employer's share of social security taxes because he believes only those who will benefit from such taxes should pay them. He said his workers agreed with him.

FATHER SHOTS 2, KILLS SELF

NEW YORK, Dec. 29 (AP)—A San Francisco cantor, furious because his estranged family would not welcome him into their fashionable New York home, shot his wife and daughter last night—his bullets just missing another daughter, a concert violinist and then committed suicide.

The man, Miriam Solovieff Aaron Solovieff, 41, himself a former violinist, had been separated for five years from his wife, Elizabeth, 38, who was shot in the abdomen.

Both Mrs. Solovieff and her 12-year-old daughter Vivienne died today in Harlem Hospital.

The only one in the Riverside drive apartment to escape was Miriam 18, who made her debut in San Francisco as a child prodigy in 1931 and who was booked for a Town Hall concert here Feb. 7.

Smart Set Functions

By BETTY ALDEN

IF HASTY PUDDING dramatists need inspiration for their annual show which is now under preparation, they certainly got it at the Opera House last night . . . The University of Pennsylvania Mask and Wig Club's "Great Guns" gave an excellent example of how good a college musical show can be . . .

Each of the many Penny grads who stood up and waved his hat and sang the Alma Mummy at the end, would insist that the songs from the Mask and Wig show are peppier, the "he-men" chorines steeper, and the sets and costumes more colorful than those in Pudding shows . . . but there were also plenty of Puddingers in the audience so the debate waxed far into the night at the after-show cabaret in the Balinese Room . . .

Whatever the outcome of the argument, the fact remains that every member of the audience which crowded the Opera House to see "Great Guns" had a thoroughly enjoyable evening . . . and expressed the hope that the Mask and Wig won't let another 43 years lapse before bringing another musical to Boston . . .

Paul Clark, chairman of the New England committee, and a prominent U. of P. alumnus, was present with Mrs. Clark, their son, Paul, Jr., and daughter Jean . . . Mrs. Clark wore a festive corsage of red roses and purple iris on her black velvet gown and Jean wore a gray sequin gown with yellow orchids in her hair . . . Paul, Jr., was host at a large dinner party for sub deba before coming on to the show, and among his guests was pretty Beverly Moore, who wore a black velvet frock with gardenias across the front of the square neckline . . .

Mrs. Hugh Bancroft, Jr., accented her Christmas red lace gown with a huge corsage of gardenias and Mrs. James J. Phelan had enormous purple orchids on the shoulder of her sumptuous ermine cape . . . Her gown was of pleated flame chiffon . . .

Ermine also fashioned Mrs. Charles H. Maltz's beautiful cape which topped a pastel gown and her daughter, Sandy, wore pleated flame crepe with a red satin ribbon tied around her blonde hair . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Pickman, inveterate first nighters at musical shows, added their share to the thunderous applause and were accompanied by Mrs. Pickman's daughters, Lucy and Nancy Cochrane . . . Lucy's peasant gown, a novel affair with a full sleeved white blouse, black velvet sleeveless basque and striped silk skirt, attracted many admiring glances and Nancy, who is studying for the stage in New York, wore a long sleeved dinner gown of striped red velvet . . .

Mrs. Philip Spalding of Milton attended with her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Hobart Spalding . . . Others in the gay audience were Phyllis Childs with her fiancé, Bill Swift, Mr. and Mrs. Luther Grimes who were among the many going on to the cabaret for members of the cast in the Balinese Room, Patricia Phelan, Mr. and Mrs. James Parker, in a foursome with Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ely Danielson, Jr., and Mary Hastings and Amy Lang in a foursome . . .

Louise Fry Bride of Robert Meyer Today

EVEN THOUGH only members of the families and very intimate friends have been invited to Louise Fry's wedding to Robert Meyer this afternoon, there will be loads of kisses for the bride and handshakes for the groom because both have a large number of cousins, uncles and aunts . . . and St. Paul's Church in Brookline will be well filled for the five o'clock ceremony . . .

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Dorothy Whipple Fry, whose cozy, rambling home on Warren st., Brookline, will be decorated with Christmas greens for the reception . . . Louise is being given in marriage by her brother, Russell, and her sister Margaret is maid of honor . . .

Ivory satin with a lace veil which formed part of her mother's wedding gown, fashions the bride's costume and she is carrying white roses . . . The bridesmaids are all wearing Christmas red velvet gowns with hats of red ostrich tips and bouquets of yellow roses . . . Sylvia and Dorothy Fry, Marietta Withington, Karkalie Withington and Mary Greenwood are the bridesmaids, and the flower girls are Martha Hornblower, Drusilla Greenwood, Margaret Louise Whipple and Anne Withington, all members of the family . . .

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred R. Meyer of Greenwich, Ct., is having his brother, John, as best man and another brother, Alfred Meyer, Jr., heads the ushers . . .

Last evening the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Lathrop Withington were hosts at the bridal dinner at The Country Club . . . The couple will make their home in Flint, Michigan, where the bridegroom is in business . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Edward W. Bancroft of Wellesley Hills, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Elinor, to Kenneth A. MacDonald of Quincy.

Mr. MacDonald . . . son of Mrs. Clark Saville . . . was graduated from Dartmouth with the class of 1939, and is a member of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity. He is now studying at Harvard Law School.

Home and Kitchen

Use Left-Overs Attractively

By MARTHA LEE

"What can we have that will use up the left-overs attractively, and relieve the strain on both the bills and our digestion?" think thousands of homemakers around holiday time. Good main dishes which are nourishing but not heavy are much in demand.

Souffles, croquettes, Shepherd's Pie, or scalloped fish or meat just fit this need. They look and taste like special treats, yet they are easy to make when made by these recipes. A small quantity of quick-cooking tapioca keeps the soufflé from falling; gives just the right firmness to croquettes, and insures good results for many other dishes as well. Tapioca is one of the most useful and surprising ingredients in the whole pantry parade.

CHICKEN SOUFFLE

5 tbsp. quick-cooking tapioca
1/2 tsp. salt
1 cup milk, scalded
1 cup hot chicken stock, or
1 cup boiling water and
2 bouillon cubes (chicken flavor)
1 cup cooked chicken, finely chopped.

3 egg yolks, beaten until thick and lemon-colored.
3 egg whites, stiffly beaten.
Add tapioca and salt to milk and stock, and cook in double boiler 15 minutes, or until tapioca is clear, stirring frequently. Cool. Add chicken and egg yolks. Fold in egg whites. Turn into greased baking dish. Place in pan of hot water and bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) 1 hour, or until done. Serve at once with creamed peas or a sauce. Serves 8.

TURKEY CROQUETTES

4 tbsp. tapioca
1/2 tsp. salt
1 1/2 cups hot turkey or chicken stock

2 cups cooked turkey, finely chopped
1 egg, beaten with 3 tbsp. milk, or stock, and
1/8 tsp. salt
Sifted bread crumbs

Add tapioca and salt to stock, and cook in double boiler 15 minutes, or until tapioca is clear, stirring frequently. Add turkey and cook 5 minutes longer. Chill. Shape into cones. Dip in egg, roll in crumbs, and fry in deep fat (350 deg. F.) 1 minute, or until golden brown. Drain. Serve with tart red jelly. Garnish with parsley. Makes 10 to 12 croquettes.

ESCALLOPED FISH OR MEAT

3 tbsp. tapioca
1/2 tsp. salt
1/8 tsp. pepper
1 1/2 cups milk, scalded
1 cup cooked fish or meat, coarsely cut

1 egg yolk, stiffly beaten
1 egg white, stiffly beaten
4 tbsp. cracker crumbs
2 tbsp. butter
Add tapioca, salt and pepper to milk and cook in double boiler 10 minutes, stirring frequently. Add fish or meat and cook five minutes longer. Fold egg yolk into egg white and combine with tapioca mixture. Pour into greased baking dish, cover with cracker crumbs, dot with butter and bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) 40 minutes, or until brown. Serve hot. Serves four.

SHEPHERD'S PIE

4 tbsp. tapioca
1 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. paprika

1/2 tsp. pepper
1 1/2 cups hot water
1 cup hot gravy or meat stock
1 onion, finely chopped
1 tbsp. parsley, chopped
1 tbsp. ketchup, or 2 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
2 cups cooked meat, diced
2 cups mashed potatoes, seasoned
Add tapioca, salt, paprika and pepper to water and gravy. Cook in double boiler 15 minutes, or until tapioca is clear, stirring frequently. Add onion, parsley, ketchup and meat. Mix well. Pour into greased baking dish, spread potatoes over top and bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) 20 minutes or until potatoes are brown. Serves six.

Love

And Marriage

He Stopped Calling

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Six months ago, I met and started going out with a man 27 years of age. I am almost 19. We went out together on an average of twice a week, and he treated me perfectly grand and we never had any arguments.

A little over a month ago he just stopped asking me to go out, with no word of explanation. I can think of no reason why he should do this. I am always neat and clean in my appearance, don't drink or smoke, and have many friends.

I see him every day, as he works nearby, but when I asked him why he should stop suddenly taking me out, he didn't want to talk about it. He spoke to me, but acts as if nothing has happened. I like him very much and it hurts me terribly to be treated like this without any reason. I just can't understand, because he has even told me he loves me.

I can't seem to enjoy myself with my other friends and am thinking of asking him again to tell me why. Would you advise it? I'd feel so much better if I really knew what was wrong. "VICKIE."

There are dozens of reasons why a young man may stop calling on his best girl. And it would be more square and satisfactory if he'd give her the reason instead of all this shadow-boxing, which is distressing and must be embarrassing to him.

Here are a few of the reasons, which have been given to me by young men over many years: Life finds himself falling in love with a girl and hasn't enough money to marry. He's too poor to take her places. Feels he's unfair in keeping away a more desirable "steady." Has fallen in love with another girl, and hasn't the courage to tell. Has got mixed up with a vamp and is ashamed to tell. Has to help out back home and doesn't wish to confide family poverty. Thinks marriage at present would be a handicap to his career.

Cocktail Fripperies

YOU'RE not making the most of your opportunity if you don't have at least one hat that goes on your head about four in the afternoon, when you're readying for a cocktail date. That's the time to forget you love tweeds and porkies, and the time to leave your plaid Scotch bonnet with the matching bag at home. They may be just ducky in the daytime, but when it's dry sherry or Martinis, and someone across the table who lights stars in your eyes, go inescapably feminine about the whole thing. For instance, this slick model of velvet and fuzzy ostrich tendrils. It's gold velvet, the Watteau crown, than which nothing more becoming has ever been devised, stitched around and around. 'Thank-Yous' By Children

By MRS. BECKMAN

Having your children write their own thank-you notes for their Christmas presents is a perfect opportunity for you to plant the seed of that generous spirit of appreciation.

You need not be fully to teach them to write their letters. They can even begin with the child on an even tiny that you can read their little hands to write these notes. (X) after the first few letters you want to thank them explain to them that you are present.

These small, personal blossoms of the child's own mind are not only a good thing, but they are also a good thing. They are a good thing, and they are a good thing. They are a good thing, and they are a good thing.

Some of the letters will be personally noted, and most of them will be written up in the afternoon. It is written up in the afternoon. It is written up in the afternoon. It is written up in the afternoon.

It is about the children are much older than the children and super-visions may be written and the child has not some of the expected answers.

The important points are that children should not be excused from writing to thank to their Christmas presents, and that they should be shown that it is not enough to want to thank relatives and friends when they happen to see them.

MISS DELIVERANCE

A Complete Short Story
Daily on This Page

By MAUREEN
FLEMING

AS she pruned the hedge in her tiny Victorian garden, Del hummed a gay tune to herself. The Spring air was warm and spicy fragrant in Princeton and that corner of the world was as young as the strolling students.

What with her huge sun hat, baggy smock and sensible sandals, it would be hard to tell what manner of person was inside. But when the postman stopped at the gate, she dropped the pruning shears and turned around with a cheery smile.

"Looks like nice mail for you this morning, Miss Fielding," he said, and gave her a smart looking blue envelope.

"Thank you, Postie!"

She recognized Miss Edward Rankin's handwriting:

MISS DELIVERANCE
FIELDING

Del went into her library and took off her tent-like hat. She really did not look seventy. Most of her wrinkles were laughing marks on the sun-tanned round face. Twinkling blue eyes were deep-set under gray eyebrows. Healthy looking iron-gray hair grew definitely off her high canvas forehead. The wide mouth above her firm chin drooped now, for a moment.

Maud Rankin's scratchy handwriting was concomitant with events both sad and gay in her life. They had been roommates at boarding school and later at Bryn Mawr.

"Dear Del (the note read):
"I am notoring to Bar Harbor where Edward and I are going to spend the summer. He is already there. But I am taking my own sweet time and will make my first stop at your house, Tuesday, spending the night if you will have me."
"Affectionately,
"MAUD."

Would Del have her? She was flushed with pleasure. Even though Maud had been the cause of much suffering in her life, Del always forgave the well-meaning selfish Maudie. Del had even forgiven her interference in the one real love affair of her life. Her engagement to Peter Pennyfeather had been broken because of Maud. That was years ago.

STILL FRIENDS

There was no bitterness in her soul about Peter. To this day, she and Maud were still confidantes.

Mrs. Maud Rankin was a dumpy little dowager, with a large tummy, small feet, tiny plump dimpled hands, no neck and a wide face with popping brown eyes. Her expensive hat was fashionably tipped on her undulated coiffure, like a sail boat.

After bringing in the bags to Del's house, the uniformed chauffeur was told to take the car and himself to the Inn until the following morning.

"Oh, I hate to think of you going, so soon!" cried Del.
"But I'm so excited about going to Bar Harbor—with all the swells!" Maud smiled. "And you know Peter Pennyfeather is there, too!"

Peter was there! He had returned after several years residence abroad. And still a bachelor! The old ladies talked and talked. He felt pitifully lonely, the morning that Maud left.

There and then, she decided to take her dog Tippi and go to Bar Harbor for a month! It was rash in a way, but she had money in her savings account.

In every detail she planned her month's trip. Del had always been a good executive. In the old days, it was she and not her brother who had taken charge of the family trips abroad. It is on the corner overlooking the garden."

"Oh," cried Del, "I think that is the same one I had—er—thirty years ago—when I came with Father. Only," she demurred, "I remember it was not good in the electric storms. I hope you are not going to have any!"

"Oh, no. I don't think so," he said.

IT WAS HE!

While her friendly eyes were smiling upon the polite clerk, Tippi, in her impulsive way, jumped up and pranced over to greet some one whom she spied and evidently fancied.

"Hello, nice doggie," Del heard a vibrant, familiar voice. Then she saw a tall, slightly stooped form walking slowly down the broad stairs! Del stood fixed to the spot. He was against the light and it was hard for her to see, but she felt the presence of no other than Peter Pennyfeather. It was he! A nightgown on the bald head, side-er stitched in white and it smelt of rose leaves and lavender.

Del sat up in bed and read for quite some time. In fact, it was almost midnight before she was ready to put out her light.

Then, out of a clear sky, thunder rolled. It rattled the whole hotel. Lightning in jagged streaks pierced the sky.

Tippi, who had always been terrified by storms, crawled up into the bed with Del. The long double exposure windows seemed to be perfect conductors for the penetrating darts. Del slipped on her blue wrapper, and with her dog, she tip-toed out to a retreat in the hall.

No sooner had she settled herself than she was conscious of another human being doing the same thing. It was Peter in his nightcap and dressing robe, heading for the same dark retreat! Del's heart pounded so that Tippi must have heard it. She snuggled up closer to her mistress. Del tried by some desperate magic to make her substantial little form squeeze through the upholstery.

body so that Peter and Del found themselves sitting quite close together.

Finally the heavens seemed to have ended their terrific disturbance and Del gave Tippi a reassuring pat as she prepared to return to her room.

"I don't think you'd better go yet," Peter advised anxiously. "I know you must be tired, Del, so we won't talk. Just sit here a little longer."

Obediently, she remained. They said nothing as they waited, and it was as if their hearts spoke from across the years.

REAL ADVENTURE

Del was truly tired, what with her journey and the excitement of this experience. As she sat there, a vision rose up into her consciousness, as if she were half dreaming and half awake. It floated before her misty eyes.

A blanket of pure snow stretched away to the precipices and up as far as she could see on the right were tall fragrant pine trees. The horizon was a limitless semi-circle garlanded with peaks, hills, tipped in radiant gold. They echoed the colorful lawn. High, high up over the mountains, as if she and Peter and Tippi were all close together in a star, she could look down over the earth. It was like a huge dark ocean of colossal waves! Almost imperceptibly, she moved still closer to Peter!

At that moment, the door of the elevator rumbled open and out stepped the polite young clerk! Tippi had been so strained from jumping at the intruder, Del and Peter bounded up, but not before the light was snapped on.

"Why Mr. Pennyfeather!" the clerk clapped his hand to his mouth and discreetly disappeared into the elevator.

"Well, we seem to be discovered!" said Peter.

"Good-night, Peter," said Del with as much dignity as she could summon under the circumstances. He bowed low over her little hand. "I never knew a storm could be so beautiful," he whispered gallantly. "And... will you lunch with me tomorrow?"

"Well... I thought I might lunch with Maud," Del hesitated. "Oh, drat Maud!" Peter swore lustily.

"Well," Del smiled recklessly, "we are disgraced now, anyway... so I might as well be seen out alone with you!"

As her door closed and she and Tippi were in her room, she could not remember ever having been so happy for ages. It had been the most thrilling adventure! Del knelt down beside her bed. Reverently she inclined her head upon her hands. Tippi rolled adoring brown eyes up at her. The canine spirit seemed to know that all was well in their little world.

THE END.

ily trips abroad. She had taken care of her absent-minded professor father, her jolly little mother and her adored big brother. Her parents were no longer living. The brother now taught geology in a Western college.

With grim determination Del got out her traveling coat. A Burberry raglan. It made an exciting swishy noise as she tried it on. Her new spring hat, a brown straw sailor, around the crown of which peeked a wreath of beige daisies, was a sort of reasonable compromise to the new styles.

Tippi, the big red setter, had to ride in the baggage car. When she arrived in Ellsworth where a car awaited to drive her and Tippi to the hotel in Bar Harbor, she felt like a regular adventurer.

Trembling with joyous apprehension, she went up to the desk with Tippi.

"As I live and breathe, Peter!" retorted Del.

That evening, Del ordered dinner in bed. There had been enough excitement for one day! She arranged for a boy to walk and find Tippi and return her to the room.

Then, as usual, she made her fastidious preparations for the night. Face and hands were washed in castle soap. Her hair was brushed and carefully plaited in two braids, which reached to her shoulders and were tied in baby-blue ribbon. Her nightgown was of finest, cambric with long full sleeves ruffled at the wrists. The pale blue flannel wrapper was daintily feather before she could say a word Peter cautiously planted himself on the other side of the settee.

A deafening roar of thunder was followed by a jagged streak of lightning which made them both jump simultaneously. The darkness had been illumined by the forks of terrifying electricity. Del was the first to speak.

"Oh, Peter!" she said "Peter here we are!"

It was so idiotic, she thought, to say anything so vacuous. However, some one had had to say something and Peter looked as if he had been struck dumb.

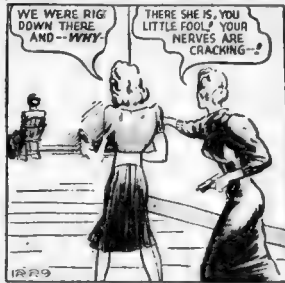

"Here we are, Del," Peter said, and turned to look at her. There was a faint light on her skin which seemed to come from within. And her two neat little braids of hair looked touchingly naive.

Another deafening clap of thunder shook the old wooden building and Tippi moved her trembling

The Boston Stock Exchange Institute today announced completion of a fortnightly lecture series schedule . . . To be held at the exchange on Monday afternoons from January until the middle of April . . .

THE LECTURES . . . Are part of an educational program and are complimentary . . . Notices sent to member firms by the committee in charge ask for letters of acceptance and the number of guests before Jan. 3 . . . $5, if the following list of lectures proves interesting, be sure and get in touch with your broker immediately . . .

THE SERIES . . . Will open on January 8, with Cyrus S. Ching of R. S. Rubber discussing the "Rubber Industry" . . . On Jan. 22, Thomas H. Carver, vice-president of the Boston Edison Co., will speak on "New Vistas in the Electric Power Industry" . . . Earle P. Stevenson, president of Arthur D. Little, Inc., will discuss the "New Products from the Chemical Industry" on February 5 . . . On February 19, Mark T. A Chrysler Corp. representative will discuss "Automobile Industry" on April 1 . . . Captain A. A. Nicholson, of the Texas Co., is down for the April 15 lecture on "Oil Industry" . . .

NEW YEARS' . . . Greetings and forecasts are tumbling out of every man's mouth . . . They represent an untold amount of work and research that all too often is lightly regarded . . . Their existence is not dependent on public demand but rather on the needs of individual industry for authoritative light on the future . . . To analyze the future is impossible . . . The best non-professional observers can hope to do is strike an average . . . For 1940 that average indicates improvement of about 5 per cent . . . Good for an election year . . . With the first half showing some let-down from recent highs followed by a steady lifting through the final six months . . . a backdrop of favorable improved earnings and higher stock prices . . .

SUPPORTERS . . . Of the bullish market cause for its own sake are looking more hopefully to the future . . . With prices of pivotal stocks and important averages pressed back to the dangerous levels, their faith in fundamentals resulted in maintenance of positions while those long for specious reasons sold out . . . Our choice of several weeks ago for upside leadership, Chrysler, reflected extreme weakness . . . Weakness saw it holding to fractional declines from recent rally highs . . . And we think any favoring speculative wind will find it ready to set sail far ahead of the general list . . . All other issues here, especially Celanese, have also proven fitness during recent selling squalls . . .

WE HEAR . . . Some market advisors feel United Aircraft is one of the best "business men's" speculations in many years . . . Also that the electrical equipment issues are

But the peculiar quality of "moral embargoes" militates against following the stock during periods of strength . . . Gold mines, supposed to suffer so severely during wars, have set up a record for stability this time that is surprising many observers . . .

NOTEBOOK . . . The accompanying chart of copper prices symbolizes the source of much bullishness on the industry . . . Since mid-November the average daily price has lifted gently lower . . . A trend few expect to continue . . . Since probable consumption is likely to head higher throughout 1940 . . . Particularly if construction lives up to advance notices means a good lift in copper use . . . Then there is the expansion planned by public utility systems . . . One of the reasons for bullishness on electrical equipments it is no less bullish on coppers, an indispensable material . . . Also keep wire shares, General Cable and Anaconda Wire, in mind . . .

FTC Favors Tightening of Anti-Trust Law

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29 (INS)—Americanists to the anti-trust laws to prohibit big corporations from obtaining control of the physical assets of competing companies were recommended to Congress today by the Federal Trade Commission.

The Commission, in its annual report, pointed out that the present law prohibits corporations only from obtaining control of the capital stock of competing corporations, and holding companies are barred from acquiring the capital stock of two or more competing corporations where such control tends to create a monopoly.

As a result, corporations have turned to the practice of acquiring the physical assets of competitors, the commission pointed out, and urged tightening of the law to cover acquisition of assets as well as capital stock.

The progressive enlargement of a few predominant enterprises has already gone so far that, in financial strength and in number of persons subject to control," the report said, "the largest concerns outrank some state governments. The dangers of such concentration of power are evident."

Stock Market Rally Meets Light Selling

NEW YORK, Dec. 29 (AP)—The stock market found difficulty today in extending Thursday's rally, but many leaders managed to edge forward.

Dealings, relatively fast in the first hour or so, slowed later, but from advances were in the majority.

Pointing upward were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Montgomery Ward, American Telephone, Western Union, Santa Fe, Southern Railway, American Nationals, Lockhead, Glenn Martin, Anaconda, Kennecott, Westinghouse and U. S. Rubber.

Unchanged to a shade off were General Electric, American Can, Johns-Manville and N. Y. Central.

The principal question confronting trading forces, brokers suggested, was just how much more tax close business.

Investment demand and the corresponding pressure in most departments, and commodities mixed. European securities markets registered improvement.

Those watching merchandising shares noted the Dun & Bradstreet survey which said that, while the usual post-Christmas let-down in retail spending appeared this week, distribution outstripped the corresponding 1938 period by 2 to 6 per cent. Purchasing lagged in the drought-stricken agricultural districts, and the Pacific Coast, it was added.

On the constructive side was the latest bulletin of the National Association of Purchasing Agents, which disclosed a general hopeful survey indicated general hopefulness for business in 1940. While a slight recession in the first quarter was noted, the forecast was added to be that prospects for the latter part of the year were excellent.

Bel to Receive Treasury Post

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29 (AP)—President Roosevelt announced today that he had named Daniel W. Bell, former acting postmaster, to the vacant post of Undersecretary of the Treasury when Congress assembles.

The President disclosed also that a few days after Congress meets, Jan. 3, he would send up nominations to fill the vacancy on the Supreme Court and positions in the diplomatic corps. Five diplomatic posts are vacant.

BRITAIN SELLS U. S. SECURITIES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29 (AP)—England made heavy sales of American securities during the first month of the war but France was a net purchaser, the Treasury revealed today.

The figures on international capital movements—made available three months later in accordance with Treasury policy—showed that net sales of American securities in September by foreign holders amounted to the relatively small sum of $1,267,000.

Although British investors sold $25,000,000 worth of Canadian bonds, $4,095,000 worth, the transactions were nearly offset by purchases of $1,460,000 by France; $7,611,000 by the Netherlands; $7,590,000 by Switzerland; $1,640,000 by residents of smaller European countries; $1,472,000 by Latin Americans; and $7,943,000 by the Far East. Germany also sold, but only to the extent of $330,000.

Leading Stocks Listed by Firm

Seventy-three "outstanding stocks of 1939" are listed in the current issue of the "Monthly Review" of Paine, Webber & Co., members of the New York Stock Exchange. All these stocks surpassed their 1938 high price during the current year and 20 achieved 11-year earnings records in 1939.

Earnings per share are shown for all issues for 1932, 1932, 1937 and 1938, with estimated earnings given for 1939. Cash dividend payments for 1939, 1932 and 1938 are tabulated, together with price ranges.

comparisons of 1929 and 1939 highs, and approximate current prices.

"Various types of industrial activity are represented," the firm observes, "but there is some concentration in consumers' goods and in stocks directly affected with a war interest. No railroad or public utility issues are found so quality for inclusion, and gold-mining shares, having greatly freed in price since war devaluation, are intentionally omitted."

Frankie's Foible; Finns; Foolishness and Folly

Scene (late last summer): The Pittsburgh Pirates were playing their final series at Bees field.

Voice: That of Frankie Frisch, cereal and petrol aerial spouter, describing the action from the press peak. The principal actor was Cy Blanton, veteran Pirate pitcher, who was having control trouble.

Frisch: "Ole Cy's a little wobbly out there... but Ole Cy's a mighty fine pitcher... Yessir! Lotsa everything—when he's got it... Well, there's another ball an' Manager Pie Traynor is hooking Cy outta there... not his day! But it happens to th' best of 'em and Cy's still one of the best..."

AUSTEN LAKE

Cause. Possibly, if Frankie had been permitted to broadcast his candid opinion last summer he would have said, "Blanton's fierce... Chee! Idda had 'im outa there long ago if I was managing these palookas... Pardon me, folks, I jes' can't look, I's agonizin'..."

THERE IS NO KNOWING BY WHAT telephonic source New York writers get their Boston information but the following in a Gotham daily is excruciatingly cockeyed. "A new racing news syndicate," says this "un," "is being backed by a Boston banking firm. A high administration official (New York) arranged with the Hub bankers to post $770,000 bond required to carry on Moe Annenberg's form chart business."

As Schnozzel Durante would say, "Wanna bet?" What Boston banker, either in legitimate or hideaway financial circles, would risk that kind of money on so shaky a proposition, since it came under federal scrutiny? Further than that, the largest buyers of race information used to be the bootleg horse establishments which were run on the same lavish setups as a downtown brokerage office (cozy chairs, illuminated tape, private wires and libraries of form charts). These, at least in Boston, are as non-existent as the dodo. A few itinerant handbook peddlars still collect scattered bets in the office district, but it's prune pits to what is was.

THAT PRINTER OF "BRIGHT IMPERTINENCE," the New Yorker magazine, answers a protest of Asa Bushnell in its current issue. Bushnell, commissioner of eastern college football officials, rebuked the N. Y. for its Nov. 9 charge that one of the Army-Navy stakeholders "thoughtfully wound two feet of chain around the hub of his stick" to give Army a short measure just before Navy's lone touchdown. The original accusation of larceny was signed by J. W. L.

In his postscript answer to Bushnell, J. W. L. quavers, evasively, "The man who caused the shortness could have been any one of two or three dozen sideline attendants who perform one function or another..."

Bosh! This illustrates J. W. L.'s unmitigated ignorance of his subject. Since the only measurements taken that took place during the game were on Navy's side of the field, J. W. L. implicates the Navy people. If he knew his stuff he would realize that no "attendants," other than the stakeholder and one press boy steward equipped with telephone, are permitted along the sidelines. But in this game an exception was made for two midshipmen who escorted the Navy Goat. Mighta been the goat!

NECK DEEP IN THE RUSSIANS, BRAVE Finland hasn't surrendered the 1940 Olympic games. Some time ago I wrote Lauri Pihkala, sporting editor of the chief Helsinki paper, hardly expecting an answer. One came today by Clipper plane. He writes: "Finland isn't thinking much about sport these days, but Finland will never cancel the Olympics. I will make this prediction: If the games are not held here, due to possible, but improbable Russian seizure of my country, they will never be held again. A Community of Nations with a common sport focus may never be reassembled."

BIG, non-sporting Gulliver is having a miserable time with athletic Lilliputia.

THE ELECTRIC EYE PRINCIPLE, used successfully at the dog tracks, is being adapted by two other sports—high jumping and football. Ralph Cohen of Boston and Eugene Sullivan of Fitchburg have patented a photo electric device which requires no cross bar and decides the exact height of a jump by a graduated series of rays. Less practical is an "eye" attachment to the football goalposts which Leo Fitzpatrick of a Detroit radio station is perfecting, and which he claims will register passage of a field goal through or over the scoring area. The gadget would make a nice souvenir when the post-busters begin to splinter the uprights following games.

B. C. Builds Defense Against Air Attack

By JOHN GILLOOLY

DALLAS, Tex., Dec. 29—Quite certain that his seven gothic towers will place violent hands upon the Clemson running attack, Coach Frank Leahy and the Boston College football squad today staged a last minute review of methods to calm Clemson's passing attack, thus checking the opposition so thoroughly that the winner in Monday's Cotton Bowl classic positively will not be Clemson.

"Goodness, I am worrying all over," replies Leahy when you ask him if these plans will work, and he neatly sidesteps the big issue. Yet, he must be confident the Eagles are going to score because a large slice of the morning's practice was devoted to kicking the point after touchdown.

These plans are necessarily flimsy, since all Leahy knows about the Clemson is that they are from South Carolina and are busily at work in privacy a few blocks away. He has heard it is one of those three-ring circus teams equipped with a bewildering pass attack and these they may hit, B. C. with such a blizzard of footballs that the Eagles will be snowed under, until next fall.

McFADDEN MARKED MAN

Leahy hasn't the faintest idea how Clemson will strike from above—Clemson throws the ball all over the premises and in all styles—so he is getting right down to the base of operation by drilling his B. C.'s to rush the passer, to tear in and floor him at once, and never let him get set to peg a forward or be loose enough to lateral with any degree of accuracy.

Many experts consider harassing the passer, hitting him with bruising tackles after he passes, the very best defense there is. Clemsons passer is the All-America J. Banks McFadden, who is a top hand in the business unless his press agents have overdone the thing as press agents have a habit of doing.

He will be the B. C. target, and he will have an alert escort including several fervent Eagles who will be with him all afternoon asking him what he has in mind doing with the football, and how it feels to be an All-America, and wishing him a Happy New Year.

Leahy has remarkable faith in his line—the seven Gothic Towers—which wrecked every running attack it met during the season, and can afford to be spending the brief time remaining in building shelters for an overhead attack.

B. C. NEEDS WORK

If B. C. meets Clemson arm-in-arm, the Eagles should start for home next Tuesday adorned with the most notable B. C. football victory in history although Clemson is current a 6-5 favorite hereabouts.

The Eagles made a heavy impression on Dallas, both by their size and spirit, during the gauzy parade on a fire truck down the main boulevard, and also in the afternoon work out open to the public, at luxurious Dallas High School field.

The local citizens are changing their minds rapidly after such observations, finding B. C. bigger and more blustery than Clemson, and this may result in a shift on the betting quotations.

Leg Injury May Sideline Clemson Guard

DALLAS, Tex., Dec. 28 (AP)—A leg injury may keep Walter Cox, Clemson right guard, out of the starring line-up in the Cotton Bowl game.

Coach Jess Neely said he would start Charley Tidwell if Cox is unable to take his position at the kick-off against Boston College.

The others of the Clemson squad were all in tip-top shape, the coach said.

They scrimmaged and will taper off tomorrow with dummy work, Neely said.

MORIARTY, EX-IRISH STAR, 'HEADER' COACH

George Moriarty, former Lynn English and Notre Dame grid star, today was elected coach of Marblehead high school, succeeding Charles McGuinness who resigned early last fall.

Moriarty was born in Lynn and played quarterback on the 1930 Lynn team which won the state championship. After graduating, he attended Clark school in Hanover, N. H., for one year, matriculating at Notre Dame.

He played on the '34 and '35 teams under Coach Layden and on graduating in 1936 he took up coaching as a profession. In the fall of '36 he coached St. Catherine's high at Racine, Wis.

His success his first year caused him to be sought by leading high schools in the West, with the result he accepted the berth offered at Aquinas High of La Crosse, Wis., where he coached for three years with marked success.

Moriarty was the choice of the Marblehead athletic board, after the candidates had been simmered down to six, at last night's meeting.

He married Rosella Murphy of Lynn last year. After a month's trip to the West to settle up business affairs, Moriarty plans to make Marblehead his home some time in February.

REFEREE POINTS RULES' LOOPHOLE

By BILL GRIMES

"All they have to do is to substitute the word 'be' for 'stand' in Rule 10, which pertains to Anti-Defense," declared Mickie Ion, who is chief of the N. H. L. referees. "And the game will be wide open."

"At present that rule reads 'No more than three players, including the goalkeeper of the defending side may STAND in their own zone before the attacking team carries the puck into that zone.'"

"If the rules committee will take out 'stand' and insert 'be,' we referees can then call enough penalties to keep players out of that zone until the puck has crossed the line."

FANS WANT GOALS

"According to the current rule, we can't penalize a player of the defending team for being in his own zone before the puck unless he's standing. If he's skating around, he's not breaking any rule. So there's nothing we can do but listen to the fans yell about 'Anti-Defense.'"

"I've been around hockey long enough to realize that the fans are not interested in close checking, and moreover they are bitterly opposed to packing defenses even by their own clubs."

"Under the current code, five and even six players of the defending team are frequently in their own zone before the puck is carried across the line."

CREATE NEW INTEREST

"Have you noticed how many goals have been deflected into the nets this season? There're so many players milling around that it is almost impossible to get a clear shot at the cage."

"So, if Rule 10 was changed so as to read 'may be in their defending zone' instead of 'may stand,' the attack would have only the points and the goalie to beat on most occasions, and the game would develop into a battle of offenses, which would create renewed interest and entice more cash customers."

After taking his stand on Rule 10, Mickie Ion made the prediction that Frank "King" Clancy was the best-looking referee he's seen break into the N. H. L. . . . "King" was one of the smartest of all-time players, according to Ion, and because he thinks faster than the average official, he'll be a stand-out. . . . Then Mickie commented on Buffalo as a hockey town. . . . He spends his off seasons in the Elson City. . . . "There are thousands of Canadians in Buffalo, all of whom are thoroughly schooled on the game. . . . It would be an ideal city for an N. H. L. club."

Art Chapman, the former Bruin, who underwent an operation for appendicitis a few weeks ago, will be out of the Americans' lineup for another month. . . . The Atlantic City Seagulls don't look like the same club without Ty Anderson, who's now with the Olympics, on the defense. . . . Gordie Drillon will have plenty of trouble trying to keep out in front in the race for N. H. L. scoring honors, with Syl Appie sidelined with a broken collar bone.

How times have changed. . . . The Rangers haven't lost a road game this season. . . . And, moreover, they were beaten by one goal in each of their three setbacks. . . . In some quarters, there's a feeling that if Les Canadiens changed their name to Wanderers, the Montreal situation might improve. . . . The English-speaking fans in Montreal are far more loyal than the French. . . . But they do not rotton to Les Canadiens. . . . The New York critics did a job on Connie Smythe for accusing Rangers of playing defensive hockey. . . . And, they were disappointed that Sir Conn was not on hand to watch the Blue Shirts knock over the Maple Leafs Christmas night. . . . Vincent Richards, Jr., the nine-year-old son of the former tennis star, was beaten in straight sets in his competitive debut this week in New York. . . .

The Kraut line is at last coming into its own. . . . It's now rated as "tops" among N. H. L. forward combinations. . . . They say a bird can't fly on one wing but the Bruins are with ONE line.

Since The Madden house has two more years to compete in this class, she has a chance to break the mark of three straight crowns won by Sarah Palfrey, now Mrs. Fabyan. Of the present crop of court stars, Miss Madden stands out head and shoulders, and should continue her reign as queen of the local courts for some time to come.

VOLS TOP TROJANS' DEFENSE

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 29 (AP)—Tennessee's undefeated and untied football machine goes into the Rose Bowl struggle with a better defensive record, on paper, than Southern California's Trojans, but the two rivals boast about the same offensive possibilities for the New Year's day offering.

Leading the Tennessee attack in its stride through ten opponents this fall was George Cafego, while Grenville Lansdell was the main gun in Troy's nine games.

BEST GUN WEAKENED
Cafego accounted for 413 net yards gained in the 74 times he carried the ball, but he played but little after getting his knee banged in the Citadel affair and is not expected to be in par condition Monday.

Taking his place as Tennessee's main threats will be Johnny Butler, who piled up 364 yards in the 58 times he carried the ball. Grenny Lansdell's record looks more impressive. A dynamic ball carrier when he's good (and not so dynamic when he's not), this dark haired senior ran with the ball 136 times and gained, net, 674 yards. On the days when he was off form, Amby Schindler carried on—for 315 yards in the 68 times he carried the ball.

Certain it is that the attacks and counter attacks will be a colorful duel for the Rose Bowl.

Figures have a way of muddling the mind, but cold statistics for the regular season this year disclose that the orange clad men of Tennessee advanced the ball 2973 yards, via land and air, in 10 games and the mighty Trojans traveled 2533 in nine games.

Statistics credit the Vols with holding their 10 foes to a net gain of 939 yards, while S. C.'s to a made-1258 yards.

IRISH HURT TROJANS

The argument over the comparative schedules of the two schools will never end. Tennessee's supporters maintain that not because the Volunteers didn't play Notre Dame instead of Mercer doesn't prove that Tennessee couldn't have whipped the Irish. They also point out that two teams, Oregon and Washington, were good enough to tie the Trojans, and that Washington had them beaten at Leland. Unchecked a 6-0 touchdown pass in the final two minutes of the game.

S. C. can reply, however, that the Washington and U. C. L. A. games followed immediately behind the Notre Dame invasion, and it is generally agreed that the Fighting Irish have a way of taking a lot out of an opponent.

Bruins Play Rangers in N. Y.

Two of major league hockey's greatest teams will swing into action at Madison Square Garden tonight, the New York Rangers endeavoring to extend their unbeaten winning stretch to 13 games and the Boston Bruins to 8.

Both teams have been burning up the National League in the last month, and their meeting tonight will be the highlight of the season to date.

Pace Setting Brookline Six Battles Dedham on Arena Ice

By MICHAEL GILLOOLY

Schoolboys will send the old year into history with three rousing rounds of hockey starting tonight and continuing tomorrow afternoon when the league standings of the three suburban circuits should be somewhat clarified.

Tonight, the Eastern Massachusetts loop starts the puck rolling at the Arena with the Bay Staters taking over the same ice Saturday while the Greater Bostons battle at the North Station depot.

The first game on the Eastern program should offer the top contest at the St. Botolph stomping grounds when Brookline faces off against Dedham. Both clubs are undefeated in three starts, and promise a whale of a battle as the introduction to the loaded week-end card.

KIRKANE SETS PACE
Bill Kirkane, all scholastic end this past football season, has been setting the pace for the Brookline sextet which has romped to three victories in as many starts. Kirkane's scoring splurge has lifted him to the individual scoring leadership and the team to top place in the standings.

Dedham has not been doing too badly with an undefeated record to back its claim. In three games, Coach Nick DeSalvo's boys have tied twice while registering one triumph.

Second place Malden, unbeaten but tied once, should maintain its runner-up position to Brookline by taking Lexington into camp. The Minute Men have lost two games against one victory.

In the other two contests Somerville takes on Mattick while Hudson battles Brockton.

NEEDHAM HOLDS CLASS
At the Arena Saturday afternoon the Bay State circuit swings into its second session of the year and the week. The first set of games last Tuesday night found Needham and Larry Arra on the firing line, the Needhams should give Ted Schofield, in the Quincy nets, a busy afternoon in the opening game on the program. Lumsden and McLeod were the first string defense pair last year, moving up to the forward wall this winter.

TOO TOUGH FOR B. C. H.
B. C. High failed to impress in its debut and will have an equally hard job in trying to pass Bill Shannon in the Watertown strings in the second contest. Walter Fitzgerald looked like the mainstay of the Eagles.

Jack Cuniff and Homer Mills of Wellsley should run into a lot of trouble against Waltham which has a powerful first line in Bob Connor, Perley Grant and Hec Rousseau. This tilt should be the standout.

Defending champion, Framingham, faces Walpole in the final game without the power that sent the club to the title in the playoffs last campaign.

DOGFIGHT FOR TITLE
The Greater Boston group offers its second session of the week at the Garden with a quartet of interesting games. The Melrose loss to Belmont earlier in the week has upset the standings completely so that this year's race shapes up as a dog-fight for the pennant.

The opening doubleheader pits Stoneham and Arlington, Belmont and Newton while the last half of the twin bills finds Melrose facing Medford and Cambridge Latin battling for the city title against neighborly rival Rindge Tech.

ROOM AND BOARD

By Eugene Ahern

W. E. HAS $200 AND 200 PALS 12-29

IT HASN'T BEEN such a bad year for Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, High Commissioner of Baseball. The venerable judge receives a salary of $75,000 a year as the Supreme Court of baseball, while he also has an unlimited expense account.

Just so that the Judge will not have any serious financial headaches he has been given $50,000 under the will of Orson C. Wells, retired Chicago stock broker, who died recently at Clearwater, Fla., leaving an estate of $2,000,000.

There were rumblings in baseball circles this year that the Judge was to be ousted from his snug $75,000-a-year job, but after he used his big stick the opposition forces fell in line and voted for him.

In the sunset of his life, the Judge should be permitted to remain at the helm of baseball. He did much to save the game following the Black Sox scandal when the national pastime was in ill repute.

Babe Ruth with his home runs, and Landis with his fair rulings on baseball disputes, lifted the game from the mire and placed it once more in the sun where it looks quite spotless.

What Landis Thinks of His Own Job

IT WAS A SPRING day in New Orleans and in the company of Judge Landis, Burt Whitman and the late Eddie Hurley I was riding to a local golf club for an early morning workout at whacking the little white agate.

The Judge was making his usual Spring jaunt around the Southern training camps, and was feeling in a jovial mood at the thought of playing golf on a perfect day, and against opponents he was very likely to beat.

"Judge," said Hurley with a twinkle in his eyes, "you have the softest and best job in the United States."

"You're right, Eddie," replied Landis with a grin. "Few business executives get $75,000 a year with an unlimited expense account. All I have to do is to travel around the country and watch baseball which I love."

I suggested that the Judge also had to make a few important decisions that had much to do with the future of baseball.

"I don't have to fine anybody $1,000,000 as I did in the Standard Oil case in Chicago," declared Landis.

On the golf links, Landis enjoys himself. Unlike Babe Ruth, Joe Cronin and Jimmy Fox, the Judge does not try for distance on his shots. He tries to keep the ball down the middle of the fairway.

"My only weakness is a water hole," said the Judge. "I never miss putting the ball into the middle of the pond."

Later the Judge proved he had the right idea on his golf. He dropped three balls into a water hole.

Considered Prohibition a Farce

I LIKED LANDIS for his simple honesty. While in New Orleans, he tendered a dinner to the baseball officials and the press. The party was tossed in a spot off Canal st. that specialized in spaghetti and beer.

"Prohibition is a farce and is dishonest," said the Judge. "Anybody with the money and the desire to drink can get all the liquor he wishes. I believe that if things that are not wrong were permitted in the open under proper license that it would be a better country."

Enough Americans held a similar viewpoint to later bring about repeal.

Landis has earned every penny he has received from baseball. He has given the game back its old standing, has barred the crooked ball player, and has stopped the association between sure thing gamblers and ball players.

The Black Sox scandal was not the only one that existed during baseball's shady period. There were numerous other instances of where ball games had been thrown by players who were taking their orders from the gamblers.

Those were the days before the lively ball, and the pitcher was the player most sought after by the gamblers. It was an easy matter for a pitcher to grove one, and by so doing lose a close ball game. There was one prominent baseball gambler who used to boast that he had half a dozen pitchers under his control. For $200 he said they would do as he requested.

Landis knew these conditions, and recognized them. He then took the necessary measures to have them eliminated.

BY ACCEPTING Judge Landis' rulings baseball people have kept their contract disputes out of court. The average baseball contract lacks equity, and could be broken by any player who wished to step into court. On account of the inter-league agreements, a player trying to jump a contract would be unable to sign with another team.

At the time of the Federal League war, the courts ruled against most of the contracts in organized baseball. The court held that no club could retain an indefinite property right in a player, and trade him down the river when it wishes to do so.

Landis recognizes these weaknesses in baseball contracts, and the magnates realize it is less expensive to have the Judge deciding their disputes at a salary of $75,000 a year than it would be to have baseball's dirty linen aired in court.

Landis, a colorful figure, always puts on a show when he attends a ball game. You may usually find him in a box behind one of the players' benches, his white hair waving to the breeze and his arms swinging like those of a cheer leader at a college football game.

All Ski Centers Filled to Rafter for Week-End

By TAP

NEW ENGLAND ON SKIS! Perhaps not the entire 750,000 skiers in the six states will be over the New Year's week-end, but nearly all of this number will attempt to do some sort of skiing—somewhere and somehow.

By auto and plane, by bus and train, a snow-hungry army will begin the march to invade the North Country, starting tonight, hoping and searching for that elusive white substance known as snow! And ski racks mean ski tracks!

Lodges, hotels, inns, and cabins at every key ski spot are filled to the rafters, many having had the SRO sign (Skiers, Run On!) out for weeks. Anyone planning to go away on the spur of the moment without reservations should take along a tent or a trailer.

The North Station depot will resemble an animated rainbow Saturday as hundreds of colorfully clad skiers start the annual exodus from the city on scores of week-end snow trains operated by the Boston and Maine railroad.

SKIING CONDITIONS for the week-end are so problematical, b. there is skiing of some sort—if you know where to go for it. The Mount Mansfield area at Stowe, Vermont, has the best snow in the East, in fact better than Sun Valley! The skiing is excellent here on all trails and open slopes. . . . Running in the Canadian Laurentians is reported as only fair. . . . At Fico Peak, Rutland, Vermont, there is fair skiing on a limited area and at the midpoint of Sunset Schuss. . . . Only one opint in New Hampshire has good skiing and this spot is Whitefield up beyond Littleton. However, fair skiing can be found at Bethlehem, Sugar Hill and Cannon Mountain in Franconia Notch. On this mountain, there is 14 inches of snow, four of which is wind-blown powder, but watch it! crusty base below! The Tram ravine trail is skiable. . . . There it is, skiers! So take it easy and pray for nice snow!

Here are a few New Year's resolutions for skiers to make: No speeding to destinations. The snow will keep. . . . Always check equipment. Take along enough clothes. . . . On trails, heed warnings of ski patrol. . . . Remove any obstacles from trail. . . . Stop at red flags. . . . Even if you're not a plumber, fill in all "bathtubs" . . . Climb up on edge of trail. . . . Think of the other fellow. FRAC-TICE CONTROLLED SKIING. . . . Take some lessons!

STUFF ABOUT SKIERS: About 35 members of the Oshoni Ski Club of Boston will spend the week-end at their nice lodge in Bridgewater, N. H. . . . Among these will be Mr. and Mrs. Sher-zan, Gardner Dean, Shirley Pike, Hugh Shaw, Jack Hill, Dot Birch, Billy Birch, Henry Cross, Bill Col-line and Jim Walsh. . . . This club will be host at a New Year's party for all the other clubs of the New-found region.

The engagement of DICK FLANDERS to "Babe" Ruth's daughter, Julia, has recently been announced. Dick runs a ski tram-mountain lodge at Keenawee, N. H. The couple met on a golf course and will continue their romance on a salmon course, which also has a ski tow.

HARRY COLDWELL, former ski racing star and owner of the Elms at Goffs Falls, N. H., has just completed a ski tow on a gentleslope at his hostelry. . . . This tow has been built especially for the novice and is free to guests at the inn. Harry also gives daily ski instruction without charge, thus helping the sport and skiers. . . .

FRED NACHBAUER, certified instructor at Gifford, N. H., sends down the good word that the Winnepeaukee Ski Club is preparing to set up an approved ski patrol of 10 to 12 members for the Gifford-Leonards area.

Prospective patrol members will take the American Red Cross course in winter sports safety and first aid. . . .

George Martin stops one on the button but proved better over the route and beat Babe Synott in Mechanics. Four thousand saw the Argonne A. A. opening.

BARTOLO NIPS DENNER AFTER BITTER BATTLE

By JACK CONWAY

Salvatore Bartolo of East Boston, a graduate of the American-Record All-America ring tournaments, flashed the most brilliant battle of his ring career to win the decision over clever Abe Denner of the West End, another former All-America champion, in a torrid ten-round bout at the Argonne A. A.'s opening show at Mechanics Building before 4000 fans.

It was an even fight going into seventh round. Bartolo then cut loose with a brilliant rally, rocking the lanky Denner with jolting left hooks to the jaw and overhand rights which landed on the chin. When Denner backed against the ropes, Bartolo shifted his attack to the body. The East Boston featherweight beat both of his fists against Denner's mid-section.

A TORRID FINISH Denner tried to offset Bartolo's gains in the eighth frame by slashing forth with long right hand socks for the jaw. But, Bartolo stepped in under Denner's blows, and drove effective wallops to the body, and when the opportunity presented itself, lifted his attack to the head.

The final two heats were jammed with action, both boxers trying to gain a decided advantage. At the final bell Referee Johnny Martin and Judge Harry Sundberg sided for Bartolo, while Judge Eddie Curley voted for a draw.

RE-ENTER WARNS FIGHTERS George Martin of the South End won the duke over Albert (Babe) Synott of Fall River in the other ten-round bout. Martin was the aggressor for most of the tussle. Synott was on the defensive the greater part of the time.

Referee Johnny Martin warned the boxers at the end of the seventh round. Martin came out for the eighth chapter tossing heavy broadsides of blows and forced Synott back across the ring. The Fall River welterweight remained on the defensive, and refused to trade blows with the rugged Martin. The decision in favor of Martin was unanimous.

PLENTY OF LAUGHS Eddie O'Tash of Portland won the decision over Mario Leonardi of West Boylston in the opening four-rounder.

Jackie Parker of Worcester took the verdict over Jimmy Myrtle of Fall River in another four. Ducky Brown of Fall River outscored Eddie Letourneau of Portland in a four rounder that was filled with action and laughs. Letourneau at times cut loose with wild right hand punches when Brown was a dozen feet away from him.

Leo DuLaine of Worcester disposed of Nick Saba of East Boston in another four rounder. The crowd of 4000 proved there is still plenty of interest in local ring shows.

Amateur Champs Fight in Lynn

The fourth and final elimination of the golden gloves amateur boxing tournament of the Pioneer A. A. of Lynn will be held tonight at the Lynn Arena.

Such boys as Georgie Murdoch, Hyde Park, Dana Bush, Boston, Mert Hunt, Revere, Pat Devine, Cambridge, N. E. champion, Joe Silva, Boston, and Steve Krodia, Cambridge, both All-America novice champions, Jimmy Griffin, Lawrence, and Frankie Norman, Lawrence, will perform before North Shore flake fans.

Argonne Signs Bolvin, Gilligan

Two ten-round bouts have been arranged for the Argonne A. A.'s show at Mechanics Building on next Thursday night. Larry Bolvin of Providence, a former All-America champion, will clash with Irish Jimmy Gilligan of Lackawanna, while George Salomond of East Boston will have Patsy Ivy of Hartford as an opponent.

Bolvin has won 18 straight bouts since turning professional, and recently stopped Tooty Dupre of Lowell.

'Pics Tangle With Cataracts

Olympics will shoot for consecutive victories seven and eight at the Garden tomorrow and Monday evenings, when they tangle with the Shawinigan Falls Cataracts.

They will also be trying to keep their record of eight games without a defeat unblemished. Not since the 'Pics dropped an 8-0 decision to the Raiders of Sherbrooke on their last road trip have they bowed.

Much of the Olympic success has been attributed to the forward line shifts. The first wave of Thompson, Guilford and Foster has come in for its share of praise, yet the 'Pics' second trio has held up its end.

The Lewis-Spain-Desrosiers combination was the most dependable line Coach Harrington had over the past week-end. As a line they picked up 16 points against the St. Hyacinthe six.

Gerry Desrosiers continues to be the best point-getter. The Cambridge youth assisted on four goals against the Gaulois and brought his total for the year to 17. He has scored four goals and assisted on 13 others.

Frankie Spain has tallied 10 times and assisted on four occasions. Dick Lewis has eight goals and six assists for a total of 14 points.

The Cataracts have several players who appeared in Boston with other Canadian clubs. Perhaps the most familiar to the Hub is Gordie Crutechfield who used to boast the red of McGill University. Gordie is now a practicing dentist in Shawinigan Falls, but has lately found time to appear regularly with the Cataracts.

Tigers Rout Harvard Six

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Dec. 29 (AP)—Princeton's powerful hockey team opened its annual three-game series with Harvard with a one-sided 6-3 victory.

Off to a 3 to 0 start in the first period, the Tiger defense gave up its first Harvard score midway of the second period when Winslow tallied unassisted.

He's Off to Rose Bowl Battle

JOHNSON CITY, Tenn., Dec. 28 (AP)—Two weeks ago Floyd Allen, 21-year-old State Teachers College student, bought a 25-cent bank, set it on the counter in the drug store where he works and put this sign on it:

"Floyd Allen's Rose Bowl fund. Help send a good fellow to the Rose Bowl."

Tuesday he opened the bank, found $97.46. Today he was Pasadena bound.
